DIVISION II WOMEN'S

Highlights

Drury wins 10th consecutive men's title, and fifth women's – It is now, officially, a decade of dominance.

Drury won its record 10th consecutive men's NCAA Division II national title and the DU women made it a sweep for the fifth time in the past six years as the Panther squads walked away with top honors as the national swimming and diving championships came to a close on Saturday night at the Spire Institute.

On the women's side, the momentum the Panthers picked up with their big victory in the 800 free relay in Friday's last event clearly carried over into Saturday's finale, as DU went on to finish with 486 points to 419 for runner-up Wayne State (Mich.) after leading by just nine points going into the final day. Queens was third with 368.5, followed by West Chester (300) and UC-San Diego (248.5).

The women's competition turned on the effort of the 800 free relay squad, said Drury head coach Brian Reynolds.

"When we ended up being ahead at the end of the day instead of being 20 or so behind, as we had anticipated might happen, it made it a lot easier for us," he said. "But it wouldn't have mattered, because we came out today with full guns blazing and swam extremely well this morning in the prelims."

It marks the 10th title for the women since Drury made the move to the NCAA-II level in 1994-95. Counting their NAIA days, it's the 13th women's national championship in the program's history, with all but one of those coming under the magnificent, 31-year reign of Reynolds. And each one, he says, feels just as important and satisfying as those of the past.

"They all are special," he said. "The only thing that gets old is the level of stress I have to endure as I get older. My body can't seem to cope with it as well as it used to."

And, just as it seemingly happens every year, Drury had past stars uphold and enhance their reputations on their way out as seniors and new faces emerge as Panthers to watch in the coming years.

From the senior leadership and performances of the likes of Tinsley Andrews and Agnieszka Ostrowska to the promising leaps forward of the likes of sophomore distance standout Sarah Pullen, and freshman backstroker Yekaterina Rudenko, the results in the end were the same.

And there was no better shining example of what Drury swimming is all about than the senior Ostrowska, someone who was a solid squad member her first three years, but broke out of the pack and became a bonafide swimming star in her final season.

Ostrowska won the 200 breast on Saturday night, breaking the national record (2:12.70) she set a month ago at the GLVC Championships by completing the race in 2:11.45.

"I'm just super proud of Aggie," Reynolds said. "She took on a lot of really tough events this year, and she's pretty exhausted after four days of swimming, so to go 2:11 after the number of great performances she put on this week is a super accomplishment."

"She came off the meet last year and totally went to work right away. She hit the weight room, lost more weight, trimmed up, did everything we asked of her and was absolutely the perfect athlete you could ever have ... and that's why she was capable of pulling off the kind of swims she had this week."

"The thing we pride ourselves on more than anything is the continued development of the athlete through a four-year cycle. That's how we've been able to maintain the dominance. We talk to them after the national meet, explain to them that these are the things they have been shown by the older kids that you have to do, and it's all just part of the process."

If not for a single-point loss to Wayne State (Mich.) two years ago in Mansfield, Texas, there would have been six consecutive years of DU sweeps. It's a painful memory for Reynolds, but one that serves a definite purpose – he said the coaching staff mentioned it in Wednesday's pre-meet talk as an example of how every race by every Drury swimmer, and every second they are in the water, matters in the end.

Then his Panthers went out and swam like it.

Saturday's effort was highlighted by Ostrowska's record-setting swim in the 200 breast and a second by Rudenko in the 200 back, but also a victory in the 400 free relay to close the meet by Rudenko, Leah Reed, Andrews and Wai Ting Yu, who also finished third in the 100 free on Saturday.

"The announcer who's been doing this meet for like the last 10 years came up and said, 'I don't know how you do it, Coach, but whatever you guys do, it's pretty magical,'" Reynolds said. "But it's about the kids. It's about them taking on what we lay out for them to do, listening, and then training that way. They have to come to the pool every day willing to do those kinds of things to keep getting better."

"We take a lot of pride in the time and effort we put into the kids, and the kids pay us back by swimming the way they do."
