1 - Introduction

Okay, so here goes. I don't really expect anyone to be interested in this, but if people like it anyway, then that's cool. I'm just doing this for my own personal enjoyment more than anything else.

Alright, here's a few things I should tell you before I get started. First, each dream will have its own chapter, so though it might seem that this story is very, very long due to the sheer number of chapters it will have, each chapter will likely be very short.

Second, I often dream of characters from movies, books, TV shows, video games, etc. Since such a variety of characters appear in my dreams, you might not always know who I'm talking about. I'll try to provide visual references.

Thirdly, um... just enjoy the stories my brain tells to me as I sleep.

I like sleeping. Sleep is good.

Yep.

Let's go.

2 - Nny's adventure in Earthbound land

Characters that appear in this dream: Johnny the homicidal maniac, also known as Nny.

Also, please, PLEASE understand that I had this dream before I actually got into JTHM. Therefore, I knew nothing about Johnny's personality. All I knew was that he was, well, a homicidal maniac. Spoiler alert: Johnny uses guns and kills children in this dream, which are two things I'm sure he'd never actually do. But I didn't know that at the time.

I'm in the living room, watching a movie of Johnny the Homicidal Maniac (who I am not terribly familiar with). He is running amok a blindingly colorful world, slaughtering children as he goes. He meets a small boy on a bridge who, terrified, asks him who he is and where he comes from. Johnny responds by saying how similar this world is to Halloween Town (where he supposedly hails from) with a few exceptions, the last one being, "...and there aren't people who want you dead." Johnny tops this off with a curved smile and an insane look in his eyes. He walks away, leaving the child to think briefly that he was gonna live, only to be felled, like all the others, by a bullet from Johnny's gun.

Dad, who was working on the computer, was bothered by the sounds of carnage, and I feared he would have me stop watching. Jackismyman {my sister, who I'll call by her FAC username} came in during a different part of the movie, one that, to my knowledge, did not contain Johnny. It took place inside a long tunnel built over a road. Like the world outside, it was very colorful - even more so, because the colors kept changing. Strange creatures were prowling the inside. Because of these things, Jackismyman and I called it the "Earthbound Bridge" ...especially when a seemingly impassable gap appeared in the road.

3 - Raiding the Tooth Fairy's castle

Characters in this dream: Teatime, from the Discworld novel and movie Hogfather.

Also includes some of the characters he had partnered up with in his quest to kill the Hogfather.

It is nighttime. I am at home, planting seeds in the big garden, which doesn't have any plants in it yet. The next night, I realize I forgot to water them in, so I turn on the sprinkler, but it's been moved to a new garden in front of the carport, a garden that does not actually exist, a garden which has vegetables in it already. As the sprinkler goes, I look for a rainbow, even though it's dark out.

Right up the road from the house is the Tooth Fairy's castle, which has a big stone wall surrounding it. It's daytime, and Teatime and his men are at the playground, including Catseye, who is running around. Inside the castle, it again appears to be nighttime, and there is a girl of about 20 years of age, tall and dirty blonde, with her little dog. She is eating the soul of a chicken with a spoon, and her dog is sniffing the floor in search of scraps. The chicken soul looks like coleslaw, but it is blue. The spoon has the words "Name of (name I can't remember)" engraved on its handle.

Elsewhere in the castle it is nighttime (it's always night within the castle) and all the men are standing around talking. Teatime looks a lot older than I remember him being. He looks to be about in his 70's. His face keeps changing: sometimes he looks like Marc Warren {the actor who portrayed him in the movie}, other times he looks like Bill Kaulitz {the lead singer of the band Tokio Hotel, which a certain sibling of mine was really, really into at the time}.

Back to the girl. She is done eating and is now moving around the room, cleaning or something. The dog is gone. Suddenly all the men come in and grab her. She struggles and screams but they slam her down on a table and hold her. She's crying and Teatime walks over, knife in hand. He leans over and says, "Don't worry, little one. It won't hurt for long." {This where you go: DAFUQ is the matter with this girl, her dreams make me feel violated.}

Later, the men are all descending a set of stairs. As they go down, a god that resembles a miniature bull tries to stop them, but only acts as a ramp for them to go down. As they step on him they say, "Excuse me," "Pardon me," "Thank you sir," etc. Further down the stairs, a bigger god stands in their way, one that looks like a Minotaur with armor. The dream ends as the group contemplates this.

5 - Underground arcade

I, along with many other children, am walking in the field across from my house. Mushrooms what look like rocks are arranged in veins across the ground, and every so often I find a ladder leading down into the ground. I really want to go under and explore, but I have to follow the group, so I make a decision to come here again sometime, seeing as how it's so close to home.

We come to a rocky stairway with a stream running down part of it. I offer to carry a very small child up the stairs, the wondered why I offered, for he could clearly go up stairs my himself. Once we reach the top of the stairs, another, purple set of stairs leads down to a cave. The child I offered to carry goes ahead and climbs down those steps with ease. I do so too, and walk through the tunnel to a large underground arcade. I walk around to see the games. Many of them seem to involve one person picking up a plastic rifle and attempting to "shoot" another person, whom I suppose is suppose to dodge, which makes absolutely no sense at all.

After a while I come across the bumper car floor. Excited, I run to tell Looper {my IRL friend} and everyone else about it so we can all go do it together. I could see her red hair across the room, illuminated by the flashing lights, after which I remember nothing.

6 - Watching a movie

Character that appear in this dream: Severus Snape from Harry Potter and Colette from Tales of Symphonia.

I was in a dark classroom watching a movie. I believe Jackismyman was there too. It was a Happy Potter movie, but it was different in many ways. For instance, filling the role of Harry was a Colette-like girl. Keep in mind that this would, theoretically, make Colette Snape's daughter. {Yes, I KNOW that Harry isn't actually Snape's son, but I had only watched the movie at this point, and it's hinted at in the movie that that relationship MIGHT exist between them. Upon putting further research into it, however, apparently if you read the book you never would have thought that at all.}

At one point Colette falls, wounded, in a vast flat wasteland. Snape and a bunch of other people (witches and wizards, probably) start running over to her. Snape turns into a bat so he can get there faster, but he still gets there at the same time as everyone else. He sits cross-legged and holds Colette's head in his hands. All the other witches and wizards are asking her how she feels. Everyone's faces are painted like in the Floor Show of the Rocky Horror Picture Show. Also, they all have weapons that are colored like Moon stone weapons {from the Skies of Arcadia video game. Go play it. Now.}.

Colette starts singing a song about dying. She mentions "diamond eyes" a lot, and the animation (this part is animated) focuses largely on her brown eyes. {Even though her eyes aren't actually brown, but whatevs.} She dies, and Snape starts singing about losing her. He's actually quite an amazing singer, though it catches me quite off guard that sings at all. It was all very much like opera, truly, only it didn't have that type of singing.

7 - My name is Sean

I am Sean in this dream {my manself: see <http://www.fanart-central.net/pic-794801.html> }. I was driving over to some chick's house. There was a fuzzy brown teddy bear in the passenger seat next to me. I was holding some teddies as well, whom I believe were Cue { <http://www.fanart-central.net/pic-789571.html> } and Anthology { <http://www.fanart-central.net/pic-787547.html> }. I was saying to them how I was the type of guy (and this was the type of situation) where I would reject a girl I liked just because some tough guy liked her as well.

I drove into her driveway, got out of the car, walked over the passenger seat window, leaned in, and mooshed the fuzzy brown teddy into my face. I asked him to make me brave enough to do the right thing. I believe someone else had materialized into the car at this point. This person got out and went into the house. She was greeted by several other girls, so I guess the girl I liked was having a party. I stayed in the car, sitting in the passenger seat and cuddling the teddies, when I got the feeling in my spine that someone was coming up behind me. I thought for sure that it was the tough guy coming to get me, but I just stayed where I was.

8 - The Skies of Arcadia movie

Characters that appear in this dream: Vyse from Skies of Arcadia and Gau from Final Fantasy.

Dad, Jackismyman, and I were watching the Skies of Arcadia movie, which of course differs almost entirely from the actual Skies of Arcadia (this IS a dream, after all). I remember there was a small beach house and a foggy ocean (a water ocean, not a sky ocean like in the game). There were two babies, one of which was Jackismyman and the other of which was Gau from Final Fantasy.

When the movie started, I, for some reason, expected a herd of sheep to appear. This didn't happen. At some point a great war or an apocalypse must have occurred, because the world was a lot emptier and sadder at the end. Gau, 4 or 5 years old at this point, and two other boys who might have been his brothers, were sitting on a grassy cliff overlooking the sea, waiting for someone. When that someone did not appear, Gau started to cry. I'm guessing their mother went missing during the war/apocalypse.

Their father, a shepherd (who we'll call Vyse, just so this has SOMETHING to do with Skies) stares wistfully out at the ocean until his sheep stare and bleat for him to come. (Dad mentions at this point how generic it is for a flock of sheep to appear.) Vyse tears his eyes away from the ocean and looks at all the minivans, packed with people and possessions, heading over the hills to their respective homes. There's a sense that the world is returning to normal, and Vyse makes a decision to take the children and return to his homeland as well.

After the movie, Jackismyman and I go downstairs to play the REAL Skies. The last thing I remember is that Valuan ships were destroying a small town by ramming their hulls into the buildings. It was dark and cloudy in this scene, so I'm guessing the ships were destroying one of their own towns for one reason or another.

9 - Rocky Horror IRL, sort of

I was watching the Rocky Horror Picture Show in the theater, even though it had nothing to do with the actual RHPS. It quickly came to the point where I and all the other audience members were inside the show, and we all acted as such. There was mass panic; people were hurt and ambulances were taking people away.

I was running around with no real destination in mind, and several times I came across a girl who was laying bloodied on the ground. I asked her name every time I found her, and she sounded more indignant every time she tells me, upset that I didn't remember. Around the third time I find her, I finally go to find her a doctor. At this point, almost nobody remains, and I can't find a doctor. So, desperate, I scream for one. An old man appears, and I run to show him the injured girl.

I then go into the large old house and walk around, lonely and confused. There's a toddler in a cradle in what looks to be our laundry room. The child is skinny and quite upset, even though the cradle is rocking. I figure someone must have been here recently to rock the cradle, and, scared, I escape cautiously, looking around every corner for whomever might remain. It's very dark in the house. I find the old doctor again and we talk for a bit.

At the end of the show, everyone is in their seats again, and a scoreboard show up on the screen, I suppose to count out who "did best". I won first place, with a score of 255. I remember not even believing I could have gotten first, since I didn't even know what I was supposed to have been doing.

10 - Pokebattle of epic proportions

This dream contains Pokemon. Lots of Pokemon. I shall not even bother putting their images up here. You ought to know what they look like.

There was one big Pokebattle, with 3 people fighting with all their Pokemon at once. Ash was in this battle and was winning tremendously. It was a newer episode, and Pikachu had evolved into Bayleef (?!?!).

At one point, a Donphan tried using Horn Drill on Ash's Bulbasaur, who, at Ash's command, used a move called Ice Drill to offset Horn Drill. It worked, and Bulbasaur used its drill to toss Donphan over its head.

At one point, someone used Rollout, and it got out of control. Eventually there's a big ball of Pokemon rolling all over the place. They form a wave and land right on "Pikachu's" head.

11 - Zombies or whatever

I'm in some sort of boarding school run by a terrible headmaster lady. I and other students keep sneaking around to do something or other that we're not allowed to do.

At one point, the terrible headmaster lady takes an incense stick and lashes herself in the back with it, just so she can place the blame on this poor bloke who, by the way, had to stand there and watch. She looked bored as she did it, even though the stick was skinning her back (but not breaking the skin). Later, she and a bunch of nuns stop a train carrying newspapers. The nuns appear horrified at the cargo, but the terrible headmaster lady doesn't. She says she never liked this newspaper anyway. The nuns go into a passenger part of the train. One mumbles about how it would take your average person a month to produce writing as great as that which the newspaper offered every day.

Later, some classmates and I are riding a vehicle through the woods. The vehicle in question is like a train, but we're not sitting inside any of the cars; we're more or less plastered to the front. We stop at a fallen tree with two dead deer inside. When we start up again, we see the deer get up and start walking. I wonder how this can be possible, because I can clearly see their spinal columns broken through the skin at their necks. We pass them, but we keep running into (and when I say into, I mean straight into and over) different zombie animals. Since I'm the front of the train, this is especially scary for me, since I keep running headlong into them. Eventually it becomes too much for me, and I retreat further back, letting someone else take my place at the front.

After I do this, we come across an undead T-Rex, who, in a rather insane way, says hello to us before losing control and crashing its head across a horizontal tree trunk with another zombie on top. I felt relieved, since that was two less zombies we would have to go face-to-face with.

13 - Another Rocky Horror thing

Okay, um, Rocky from RHPS is in this dream, but I'm not sure how appropriate it would be for me to include a picture of him, since all he ever wears is a pair of golden underpants. Just visualize a muscular blonde guy in golden underpants. That'll do the trick.

I was in a world being attacked by aliens. It was nighttime and, quite literally, a bloodbath. I was with a group of survivors, among whom was Rocky and a dark-haired overweight geeky guy. I remember going down a huge waterslide (the tunnel kind) right behind Rocky, whom I thought was dead. There was blood instead of water in the slide, and I could see other corpses going down, including that of a little girl.

When we reached the bottom, I checked to see if Rocky really was dead, but he woke up and asked where his master was. I hadn't the heart to tell him what happened to Frankenfurter.

14 - Hey look, this dream has a wolf in it

I was in a Final Fantasy like place. We were about to go into a great battle, and I wanted to teach the wolf in my party new magic using Espers. Jackismyman wanted to teach it fire magic, but I had already taught it all of its fire magic, so I gave it the Esper Shiva for ice. We were inside a cave, and at one point the wolf and I blown sky-high into the air at such force that it took several minutes for us to reach the peak of our ascent. On the way up, the wolf kept barking sparks out of its mouth. It did this until eventually ice came out instead of fire. The wolf was not able to hold the ice, as it was soon followed by a jet of fire, but it seemed triumphant anyway that it had been able to use ice magic.

Soon after the wolf's victory, we neared the ceiling of the cave, but we started to fall before we hit it. We passed by a ledge on our way down, on which I considered dropping something important for safekeeping, but I decided it would be too much trouble to get it back later (no duh). The wolf howled in fear as we fell, and I could see lights below us, as if we were over a city. It was sunrise by the time we landed softly and safely on a beach that looked quite a lot like Emerald Coast {from Sonic Adventure}.

15 - Spooky dreaming

Characters in this dream: Giygas, from the video game Earthbound.

Hey, I WARNED you about the spookiness.

I was on my way to fight Giygas. I came across a large door in a peaceful green garden. As I was about to open it, I was told to look closer. I did, and there was a rather adorable (if you can believe it) carving of Giygas in the woodwork.

As soon as I opened the door and entered the room, I encountered a Giygas. But it was not THE Giygas. Apparently there was more than one of him in this dream. Anyway, as usual, I feared to look at him {imagine how tough it was for me to go searching for that picture up there!} but he wasn't as scary as the REAL Giygas.

16 - Rats and birds and goodness knows what

Our clubhouse was bigger and more elaborate than it actually is, with more rooms and more decorations. Jackismyman and I were playing in it, and we found a black rat and a black bird. We decided to keep them. I, of course, kept the rat, and carried it around with me as I cleaned the clubhouse. Jackismyman thought he was a girl, even though he clearly was not. He was very tame and didn't bite or struggle, so I'd almost forgotten he was wild.

I brought him inside and put him down on the kitchen counter, where he stayed very still, so still and discreet that Mom did not even notice him as she started to work there. She only noticed when she saw him in my hands after I retrieved him. She asked where he came from, and I told her we had set up traps in the clubhouse, even though I didn't remember having done such a thing.

I brought the rat into the living room and he started scrambling around in my hands as I started to put him down. His claws were scratching my hands and I was afraid he was going to bite, but I knew he probably didn't mean to scratch me. Once he'd been put down, he fell blissfully asleep in his spot.
