

David Austin Garden Roses

Patience (Auspastor): A delightful buttermilk rose with ruffled petals filled with fresh Old Rose fragrance with elements of fruit, lilac, and myrrh. The fragrance starts medium strong, but softens as the bloom ages, developing lemony notes.

Beatrice (Auslevity): Beatrice is David Austin's first yellow cut rose. This rich buttery yellow garden rose begins as a ruffled cup and opens to a large classic rosette shape with a pleasant fruity fragrance. Its strong upright stems make it ideal for use in arrangements.

Juliet (Ausjameson): The soft peachy shades of Juliet combine well with other colors, creating a feeling of warmth and romance. One of the best known and most popular English cut roses. Juliet has a very light Tea Rose fragrance.

Rosalind (Austew): Small, blush-pink open to reveal peony-like blooms. With a gorgeous fruity fragrance, Rosalind can be added to mixed bouquets to add scent.

Keira (Auschris): Each rose is very subtly different, being a wonderful blend of blush pink and cream, often with warm peach highlights. Keira has a medium fruity fragrance and a cupped rosette shape.

Miranda (Aussimmon): Rose pink blooms with green outer guard petals, reminiscent of a parrot tulip. As the blooms open, the guard petals lighten and eventually become hidden. Miranda has a delicate fruity fragrance.

Carey (Ausweather): This charismatic rose is a true medium pink that combines well with all arrangements. Held elegantly on long strong stems, the blooms begin as large full buds which gradually unfold to very large cupped and quartered rosettes that reveal a cluster of yellow stamens once fully open. Carey has an alluring fresh rose scent with hints of cedar wood.

Phoebe (Ausnotice): A wonderful shade of deep pink with blooms that open quickly, revealing many inner petals which maintain their purity of color even as the flower ages. Beautiful color, classic form, and fruity fragrance combine to give this variety a true antique character.

Kate (Auschris): Beautiful at all stages, the true double bloom form of this rose gradually appears as the rose matures. The overall impression of the young flower is raspberry pink, but as it ages, the petals deepen in color, developing hints of purple. Kate has a crisp, clean fragrance and is named in honor of the Duchess of Cambridge.

Darcey (Auschariot): The color of Darcey gradually transforms from a bright crimson to a raspberry red as the bloom ages. Darcey has a very light fruity fragrance and our longest vase life to date.
