...SNOW DURING THE EVENING COMMUTE...

Please use caution when traveling to your destination this evening. This is a situation where light snowfall amounts can create slick conditions.

Light accumulating snow, mainly around an inch or less, is expected through early evening. Cold ground temperatures will allow for accumulation on untreated surfaces and roadways. Slick conditions and snow covered roads will be possible through early evening, even with light amounts. Commuters should prepare for longer than normal travel times, and are urged to slow down and increase following distance. Slippery spots should be expected to linger even after the snow ends, especially on secondary and lesser traveled roads.
