

MASTER OF ARCHITECTURE

Selectives & Degree Options

SELECTIVES (required)

All M Arch students must take two selective courses, one in the area of History and Theory, and the other in the area of Professional Practice (this is in addition to the required course: ARCH 571-Professional Practice).

History and Theory Selective: M Arch students must complete one History & Theory selective. These courses are 3-credit (or more) 500-level courses approved by the department curriculum committee that cover a wide range of topics; all emphasize three important aspects of architectural education: research, writing, and verbal communication. History and Theory Selectives require that students write a substantial research paper first as a draft, and then as a final paper that responds to the instructor's critical feedback. Many of these courses also offer brief weekly writing exercises. Students in these courses participate in faculty-guided discussions of the course material and, in most cases, one or more formal, research-oriented presentations to the class.

Professional Practice Selective: M Arch students must complete two professional practice requirements: ARCH 571 Professional Practice course and a Selective. Selective are 400-or 500-level courses approved by the department curriculum committee. They cover topics in key areas of practice. Some focus on a particular project type or project scale and its issues and requirements from pre-design through construction administration. Others focus on a topic area of practice having the potential to shape project outcomes or an individual's practice orientation: real estate and construction industry economics, law, the regulatory contexts, business development and branding, building information modeling, design in specific environments, community engagement, professional leadership and collaborative practices. Professional Practice Selectives include in-depth exposure to real-world examples and require students to engage in field research, critical problem-solving, or academic research and writing. Selectives generally require a term project that is reviewed sequentially as it is developed or is reviewed in a draft form so that the final submission has been subject to critique and revision.

M ARCH DEGREE OPTION (optional)

Degree options provide M Arch students with an opportunity to concentrate their studies in one of three areas:

- History, Theory and Criticism
- Materials and Fabrication
- Sustainable Systems and Design

Students indicate their preference for the degree option by spring of Year 2 (ARCH 505 studio) using the department's Degree Option Registration found on the MyARCH section of our website. The degree option will appear on the student's final transcript.

Each degree option requires 25 credits; these credits also fulfill general M Arch requirements and do not add credits to the M Arch degree or increase time to degree. In addition to completing courses already required for the degree (indicated with * below), students must replace the three ARCH Electives with courses from the approved Elective lists and complete research in ARCH 599 or either ARCH 593 or 594 appropriate to the area of concentration. Students may not pursue more than one degree option. Students may also choose to complete the M Arch degree without designating an area of concentration.
