Our Story

Flora Fine Foods is dedicated to bringing genuine Italian ingredients, authentic to the region from which they come, for authentic Italian cooking.

Our Values - La Tua Famiglia

Our family name is on each and every product we sell, and we insist that only the best can bear the Flora name. We value each and every customer as a member of our own family because without you, there would be no Flora Fine Foods.

1962: Arrival in America

John Flora was born into a poor family of tailors in Bari, Italy, but followed his dreams to America, arriving on December 17, 1962, impoverished and speaking no English. He grew up in the predominately Italian neighborhood of Bensonhurst in Brooklyn, New York.

Later 1960's: Food Career Begins

John had always been fascinated with electricity, mathematics, and machines. He initially pursued an education in Electrical Engineering. John looked for part-time work to earn money. In a neighborhood where dough overflowed the streets, a pizza parlor was on every corner, and authentic Italian food was an everyday part of life, the Villa Cucci Italian Bakery was already renowned for its quality. John began working there, not realizing at the time that his career in food had already begun.

1972: Flora's Drive-in

It was while vacationing in Miami Beach that John realized that while he loved the Sunshine State, he could not find an authentic pizza anywhere. His cousin told him about a piece of property at 79th and Flagler in Miami. It wasn't long after that John purchased it, and Flora's drive-in pizza parlor opened in 1972.

'72-'74: Authentic Italian Food

The success of the pizza parlor fueled expansion with Flora's Italian Restaurant in Hollywood, Florida. It was here that John met the future Mrs. Flora. Tourists and locals alike began to know their restaurant as the place for authentic Italian food, with ingredients sourced direct from Italy. Soon the competition took note, and when other restaurants began asking about acquiring the same Italian ingredients, John began his restaurant supply business.

1974: Importing Genuine Italian Ingredients

Starting by importing the very best genuine Italian tomatoes and supplying restaurateurs from the back of his restaurant, John found demand ramped up quickly. Soon, the problem became one of space. John's short-term solution was draining his pool and keeping the tomatoes there - but more growth was still to come.

2000's to Today

Today, after 40 years in business, Flora Fine Foods has our new headquarters open in Coral Springs, Florida, servicing supermarkets, Italian grocers and specialty food stores across the country with vastly expanded warehouse and refrigerated storage space. The Italian marketplace with breakfast and lunch cafe is still to come. John and Mrs. Flora still work there every day, and John still visits Italy to source genuine Italian ingredients for authentic Italian cooking.

And to this day only the best can bear the Flora name.
