positive vibes only

Like all of us, children are influenced by their environment. An effectively designed early learning space has the potential to positively influence every part of a child's learning and development.

What do children need most from their space? They need a sense of belonging and emotional security. They need safe risk-taking opportunities. They need stimulating resources that are inclusive of all children's needs. They need displays that are meaningful to them and space to explore. They need a place where they can learn through play.

For young children, their learning environment plays a significant role as they're in the process of rapid brain development. Based on what a child experiences, the young brain develops stronger connections. The desired result is to develop connections where children feel safe, welcome and a sense of belonging.

An inspiring learning space will also empower children to learn at their own pace and support their learning needs in different ways.

The early childhood environment also plays a strong role in the development of children because it can be a home away from home — a baby beginning in an early childhood setting may spend up to 12,000 hours in this space before starting school.

When you fit out your space with thoughtful furniture, textures, materials and colours, it creates a welcoming environment that can be calm and restful, but also engaging and stimulating. Positive vibes only.

Modern furniture for your learning spaces.

Your furniture solutions, from tables and shelves to rugs and cushions, help shape your environment and can positively impact learning, growth and development.

Think durable, quality materials and craftsmanship, safety, moulded shapes, stackable designs and easy clean finishes in fit-for-purpose sizes and styles.

Wondering how to maximise your space?
We've pulled together elements that work beautifully together to make the most of your learning environment... from active area to zen zone.

Start with a book nook. A reading area will ignite a child's passion for books and storytelling, as well as allow for essential down time. Choose comfortable seating, plush cushions and age-appropriate books. Soft lighting and cosy rugs create an inviting atmosphere that encourages children to explore. Include fiction, non-fiction and picture books to cater to diverse interests and reading levels.

Zone up themed play spaces where children can immerse themselves. Consider an art & craft messy play area, home kitchen corner, dress-up area and construction zone. Provide open-ended toys like building blocks, dolls and art supplies to encourage creative expression. Add costumes and props to stimulate storytelling and role-playing adventures.

Early exposure to STEAM resources nurtures young minds. Set up exploration stations with science kits, puzzles, engineering toys and art supplies. Encourage hands-on learning experiences, where children can experiment, problem-solve and explore the principles of STEAM subjects through play.

Your outdoor space is a wonderland of potential. There are so many ways to engage their senses and support physical activity, play and movement, gross motor skill development, balance and coordination. Consider stepping stones along paths, poles, logs and climbing frames, a cubby house or teepee, a sensory garden, animal area, sustainable water play area or secret garden.

cushions, carpets & comfort

Warmth, comfort, zone-defining creativity... in early childhood, rugs are never just rugs. They encourage group activities and collaboration. They provide a safe space to explore, sit and play. They absorb sound, creating a quieter atmosphere. Our beautiful carpets, rugs and cushions are a soft place to land. Bring on the comfort.

Heavy duty but with a super soft feel, match our Blue Thatch Carpet with a welcoming chair and cushions for a warm, inviting atmosphere.

Made for play, designed to last.

go with the flow

Designing an amazing space means creating an environment that supports learning experiences and flows effortlessly from one zone to the next. Let's flow.

Your centre layout should facilitate a natural flow, helping children to move easily between different activity areas. This not only helps children transition smoothly from one activity to another but helps with organisation and planning. Consider indoor-outdoor flow, and the flow from one zone to another.

Divide your learning space into distinct areas for activities, such as reading, group play, eating, art or rest. Once each area has its purpose, equip it with age-appropriate resources that encourage exploration, creativity or relaxation. Make sure there is also an adult sized chair or couch for educators or families. Use zoning techniques, such as rugs, low bookshelves, colours or textures to create definition and flow. Zones help children understand the purpose of each area and encourage focused engagement.

Flow through to a sensory play zone to support babies, toddlers and preschoolers as they process information through touch, smell, taste, sight and hearing. Adding a sensory play table, den or room will stimulate exploration and sensory development.

Don't forget the flow of natural elements to promote calmness and enhance creativity. Consider wide flowing doorways, windows and strategically placed mirrors to maximise the flow of natural light. Natural elements, such as indoor plants also brings the outdoors in and connects children to the natural world.

room dividers & mirror magic

Create zones that define distinct play spaces with beautifully adaptable room dividers. With whiteboard, blackboard or mirrored sides and castors, add a big tick for portable and multi functional too. Bring mirror magic to life in your centre with reflective surfaces and statement pieces that bring out the exploratory play in children.

Natural Spaces Whiteboard & Blackboard Room Divider lets you create engaging spaces for group activities and individual play.
