*To His Excellency Lieutenant-Colonel SIR J. TERENCE N. O'BRIEN, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St.
Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.*

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY;—

I have the honor to submit the Return of the Census of this Colony and its Dependencies which was taken in the year 1891.

The labour, of which the accompanying volumes are the result, was commenced in the month of June and continued until November, when the last series of returns was received from the Labrador.

The Census was not taken at the usual decennial period, which would have been in 1894, as Her Majesty's Government had expressed a desire that Newfoundland should act in unison with the rest of the British Empire in undertaking a simultaneous Census. It should therefore be remembered, in making a comparison of increase or decrease, that the period covered by the Return is only that of seven years.

Desirable as it would have been to secure an enumeration of the people of this Colony in one or two days, as is customary in other parts of Her Majesty's dominions, such a course is entirely impracticable in this Colony where the population is scattered over a coast line of several thousands of miles and where communication is largely by water.

It will be noticed that in many of the Districts the increase of population has been small, whilst in a few there has been a decrease. This may be accounted for by the large inducements held out to artisans and labourers in the United States. Newfoundland is not singular in this respect. The report of the statistics of Canada show a similar result throughout the Maritime Provinces.

For the convenience of reference the result of this work has been divided into two volumes, one dealing with the population—their sex, denomination, ages and professions; and the other with the property and productions of the Colony. Comparative statements are also appended to both.

As regards the main object of a Census, the ascertaining of the total population and its distribution throughout the Colony, the accompanying Return may be considered as accurate. Every effort has been made to discover and correct errors during the various stages of compilation, and any errors that may still exist cannot materially effect the practical result.

I have the honour to be,
Your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

R. BOND,
Colonial Secretary.

July 22nd, 1893.

To His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies
Whitehall, London, 25th August 1881.
Dear Sir,
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 17th inst. in relation to the proposed extension of the term of office of the members of the Council of the Colonies, and in reply to inform you that the same has been referred to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and that he has directed me to inform you that the same will be considered by the Secretary of State for the Colonies at an early date.

Yours faithfully,
J. H. B. [Signature]

I have the honor to submit the history of the Council of the Colonies, and the provisions which are taken in the year 1881.

The history of which the accompanying volume are the result, was referred to the Council of the Colonies, and continued until November when the Council was re-elected for the following year.

The Council was not elected at the usual biennial period, which would have been in 1881, as His Majesty's Government had expressed a desire that the Council should not be elected until the end of the British Empire in connection with a re-organization of the Council. It should therefore be remembered in making a comparison of the Council of the Colonies, that the period covered by the Council is only that of seven years.

It is to be noted that in many of the Colonies an extension of the period of the Council in one or two years is necessary in order to give effect to the provisions of the Council, which is entirely inoperative in the Colonies where the population is not so large as to require the Council to be elected at intervals of seven years.

It will be noted that in many of the Colonies the history of the Council has been small, and in a few there has been a decrease. This fact is accounted for by the large number of Colonies which are not included in the Council of the Colonies. It is not included in the Council. The report of the Council of the Colonies is a similar one to all throughout the British Empire.

For the reasons stated above, the Council of the Colonies has been elected into two volumes, one dealing with the population—this was the original part, and the other with the property and production of the Colonies.
The respective documents are also appended to each.

To receive the most effect of a Council, the Secretary of the Council and the Secretary of the Council, the Secretary of the Council, and the Secretary of the Council. Every effort has been made to discover and correct errors during the course of compilation, and any errors that may still exist cannot be held responsible for the present results.

I have the honor to be
Your Secretary's most obedient servant,
J. H. B. [Signature]

* The population for 1881 should have been somewhat larger, as a block of buildings in Cook's Town was erroneously included in the West End.

† The population for 1884 should have been somewhat less, as a block of buildings on Cook's Town road was erroneously included in the West End.

Summary of the research work of the Physics Department during the period 1950-1960. The department has made significant contributions to the fields of quantum mechanics, particle physics, and astrophysics. The following table provides a detailed breakdown of the department's activities and achievements over the decade.

The research results section of the report details the department's output in various areas, including the number of publications, grants, and students. The data shows a steady increase in all categories over the ten-year period, reflecting the department's growing reputation and resources.

The following table provides a detailed breakdown of the department's activities and achievements over the decade.
