TATE. desire to inform the public that Castoria is made and put up in the Laboratory of The Centaur Company, New York City, in but one size bottle and on the outside wrapper the formula is printed and the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher appears on the face. No other preparation offered as Castoria is genuine. To counterfeit or imitate either in the name or signature is a criminal offence.

Castoria has become a valuable standard family medicine with the endorsement of some of the best Physicians in the world. Don't allow any one to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just as good," and will answer every purpose, etc. Castoria is sold by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicine.

Do not be deceived when you buy it, but look well at the wrapper and see if it has the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. No other can be genuine. Castoria without this Signature is a Base Fraud.

What is

Castoria is for Infants and Children. Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Seothing Syrups. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. Castoria cures Diarrheea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. Castoria assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels of Infants and Children, giving healthy and natural sleep. WEAVING THE WEB.

SHE stood by the window, look-ing out over the illimitable sea, a picture of rare loveliness-stately and tall, slender and willowy, graceful and high-bred, the dainty head held proudly aloft and the rich masses of blue-black hair falling in a shining, glossy cascade over the sloping white shoulders down to the lithe waist. A low brow; a complexion ivory; a curved red mouth, haughty and sweet at once, and two wonderdeepest mourning, trailing far behind her over the oaken floor; her sole ornaments a sparkling cross of diamonds on her breast, and a circlet of red gold clasping back her beautiful, abundant hair. She stood alone in the long, low, do you do it, Rory?' old-fashioned drawing-root the first of a lengthy suite-alone by the open window, framed, like some exquisite picture by Greuse or Guido,

Well, I give you in love, with all the fire and passion and wild abandon of her tropical southern blood. She loved and was beloved, and this wild Wicklow coast was to her fairer than all the beauty for, Lord Roderick.' of aunlit old Castile-this stormy Irish Sea, spreading before her, dearer than the bright-flowing Ebro, on whose sparkling waters her baby eyes had first looked.

The moon was rising—like another Venus Aphrodite, out of the oceanred and round; the stars swung clear in the purple night sky; the nightingales sounded their plaintive jug-jug in the woodland, and soft and low the waves washed up on the white

And looking on all the sylvan beauty of the falling night, with her happy heart in her starry eyes, Incz D'Alvarez stood and waited for her

She was of an intensely proud and | jealous nature, this high-hearted daughter of old Castile, and she came of a fiery-blooded race, who brooked no rival in love or in power.

It was a right leal heart, as became a Show me the tie that me to others binds,

The fair, dark face gleamed out a second in the silvery moonlight, then day, Not in vague things beyond my ken vanished. She was by far too proud to let any man alive, though he were her king as well as her lover, see she waited his sovereign pleasure.

> But the bawk eye of Gerald saw ner, swift as she moved, and the soft, rained voice rose ever so slightly as be passed beneath the casement.

'I was conversing with a very old riend of yours this time last night, Rory,' he said, with his low, faint augh; 'and-poor little girl !-she does take your divided allegiance terribly to heart. We had bysterics, tears, reproaches, despair-all that sort of thing that women persist in going in for-to our hearts' content. What a terrible slaughterer you are, Rory! Knock Nero to nothing; out Herod, Herod! It is the massacre of the innocents over again!'

Rory opened his bright-blue Celtic eyes in a wide stare of honest astonishment.

'Hey! What the deuce are you of the dead, creamy whiteness of driving at? I don't know what you

'Of course you don't. That's ful Castilian eyes, long, black, and your role now-as Benedict, the marbright as stars. She was dressed in ried man. Stick to it, my dear boy, by all means. And then they passed away beyond sight and hearing, the last words coming faint and far off to the listener's ears.

She did not see the flash of honest sorrow and shame that | mantled Roderick Desmond's fair, frank face, or hear the passionate grief and self-reproach in his voice as he ·Before heaven, Gerald! I never loved Kathleen save as a sistera little playmate and pet-or thought she loved me! I never made love to her. I pledge you my secret honor, I never thought of this!"

Gerald Desmond laughed lightly. 'No; I dare say not. We don' premeditate and do these things in cold blood. We go on impulse, and it comes to much the same thing in the end. Bella donna will think she has lost you.'

The wax-lights were lit in the dark, quaint old drawing-room, with its heavy, antique furniture, and its square of Persian carpet and rich old Turkish rugs laid over he polished oak flooring.

Her passionate Spanish eyes flashed fire, her little hand clenched in a paroxysm of jealous rage.

Through a Statement in Prideaux's Evidence.

The Bayley murder case opened yesterthe Bayley murder case opened yester-day morning in the Supreme Court. The hearing was public and the court room was crowded all day. The interest man-ifested was very intense. The counsel in the trial are D. A. Hearn, and D. A. Cameron, for the crown, and H. Mac-Donald and D. D. McKenzie, the accus-Donald and D. D. McKenzie, the accused. The charge against Bayley is that of murder, the killing of Miriam Cossman, of Channel, Nild., by the performance of a criminal operation for abortion. He was indicted Thursday and to his arraignment yesterday pleaded "not guilty," Bayley appeared in the box, betraying very little nervousness and followed the proceedings of the court with rapt attention. His features have changed very little since he appeared in the lower court unless it be that they are paler and more sallow.

The two sensational features of his vidence were his statement as to the bargain he made with "Dr." Bayley and that connected with the purchase of some drugs from F. M. Crowe, of Crowe and Morse, druggists, at North Sydney. This latter statement gave another turn to the esse and led in the afternoon to the indictment of Mr. Crowe on the charge of supplying drugs to secure miscarriage.

Prideaux swore that he told Dr. Bayley he had a girl in Newfoundland in The open

His evidence with regard to Mr. Crowe was adduced under cross-examination by Mr. MacDonald.

McDonald asked Prideaux if he had given the decessed any medicine before he had consulted Bayley. Pridesux replied that he had given the girl some pills which he had purchased at the drug store of Crowe and Morse. On MacDonald asking Prideaux what kind of pills he had purchased and if he had told Crowe for what purpose he wanted them, the Judge told the cross-examiner that this evidence had no bearing on the case on trial, that he did not believe that it would sid his client and that he was would aid his client and that he was ever, finally allowed the questions to be put and directed the witness to answer them after warning him to be most careful as to his replies.

Prideaux's replies to the questions were: "I think I said that a girl was in trouble and I saked him if he could give me any medicine. He handed me a box of pills for which I paid him. I do not know if there were any directions on the box. I think he told me what was to be done with the pills. I don't know whether they were taken or not. I gave them to her and told her the number to take daily."

Afternoon Session.

At the opening of the afternoon session Justice Meagher called the attention of the grand jury to the statement made william FREW, Water street his purchase of some pills from Mr. Crowe. Prideaux had gone to Mr. Crowe, told him about the deceased bed guilty of the crime with which Crowe was charged, the sooner they were found and punished the better would it be for the county. The jury remained out only a few minutes and on their return brought in a "true bill" against Crowe.

BELL ISLAND NOTES.

For some time past the D. I. & S. Co. have been short of men and sections of their works are closed down in consequence, The s.s. 'Priestfield' arrived last evening (Sunday) bringing some 40 men, all Newfoundlanders, to the Island from Sydney and the 'Thoroid' arrived Sunday morning with 50 more. These men say they were promised 15 cents an hour before leaving Sydney to work on the Island and positively refuse to work for less. Some of these left last evening and more to-day for their homes intending to go fishing. There is much discontent amongst the laborers and grumbling about wages and they have been openly talking of striking for some time past. This idea is gaining ground and the men from Sydney say they will cause a general strike to-day as they won't work only for what they get at Sydney work only for what they get at Sydney (15 cents) and for which they were hired before leaving. The companies officials are alive to the situation and met yester day in their office to discuss the outloof and all are anxiously awaiting the result of their deliberations. Manager Chambers (of the N. S. Co.) has all the metals and there is no complaints.

"Such a notion," he said, "is most absurd. I can assure you that he such feeling exists, and you can take my word for it that there are no more loyal people within the empire than the inhabitants of Newfoundland. What the people have elemered for is a measure of rede nave clamored ciprocity with the United States, which is a natural market for much of our pro duce, such as those from mines and Turning to the question of the loyalty displayed by the colonies during the war he continued: "The war enabled the colonies to display in a most marked manner their loyalty to the Throne; and I have no doubt that the way they came to the assistance of the Mother Country surprised the European powers. Yes, the war brought about a manifestation of unity of Empire in a way nothing else could have schieved; and that manifesta-

1. N. Ford's Opinion.

London, June 27.—The transformation of the hallowed abbey into a theatre for a splendid pageant has been costly and laborious. The authorities naturally desire to avoid the expense and trouble of repeating this transformation. It is probable that the abbey will remain closed for a fortnight, or longer, until the King is pronounced out of danger, and there is a reasonable assurance that the strately, and though slow, as inevitable in a patient of his age and physique, yet sufficiently satisfactory to warrant the conclusion that there is no longer any danger to be feared. The likelihood of a relapse is now very small, and the people of the empire would seem to have cause for rejoicing that their beloved sovereign is to be spared to them, let us hope for many long and happy years.

While on many grounds, apart from the immediate danger to the royal patient, the blow is to be regretted, especially in that it has entailed a posttion ceremony itself, unless all signs fail, will also be abridged, and the attendance of colonial statesmen and Indian princes, in which he was held as a man, spart from a monarch, was probably never realized to the fight by the British people until this calamity evoked such warm and appreciative tributes to the many rehearsed under the direction of the Duke of Norfolk. The King himself, if he recovers, will be interested in having a passion of the continent have been unanimons in their testition by to his i worth. The American papers and people have been fervent and outspoken in their sympathy and kindly feeling. The editorials of the leading Its, dailies might almost be mistaken crowned in the sick room, but there was no authority for these inventions. No private ceremony could take the place of the wonderful pageant so carefully rehearsed under the direction of the Duke of Norfolk. The King himself, if he recovers, will be interested in having a pages of the Cowan Mission beg to acknowledge, with sincere thanks, $40 from Mr. Hutton, 50c. from Miss Susan Bolt, papers from City Club. ## A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A very serious accident occurred when the s.s. 'Rosslind' was being berthed this morning. The stern line was run in as usual, but got caught under the eastern end of the pier. A crowd had assembled on the wharf, suddenly the rope cleared with a snap and those close to its received the full force of it. Ones the was thrown overhourd, and cut shout the was thrown overboard and cut about the forehead and chin. A boat from a schooner near by rescued him. Two others had their caps torn off and the flesh removed from their heads about two inches, blood flowing freely. The most serious was a young man named Smith, of Cabot st. The rope struck him under the chin, he was thrown down with terrific force and became unconscious. He was picked up and taken to Harvey & Co's, store, and for twenty minutes lay as one dead. The ambulance was summoned and he was taken to hospital, but owing to the crowded con-dition of this institution could not be ad-mitted. The ambulance conveyed him He had regained consciousness by this time and a doctor was sent for at

A STRANGE AFFAIR.

The 'Glencoe' left St. John's at midnight of Saturday 21st. and was adver-tised to leave Placentia on arrival of train on Monday afternoon. The ship had no instructions to wait for the train, but the captain thought there would be an order awaiting his arrival. The order not being was told to coal and proceed at once. The ship's leaving Piacentia 11 p.m. Sun-day was noted in the 'News' next morning, and the passengers must have caught on and notified the Government, for during the forenoon the 'Argyle' (fortunately in port) was ordered to get steam up and proceed to Burin on arrival of train. The 'Argyle' after embarking some 30 passengers and mail for the West Coast salled immediately on train's arrival and met the 'Glencoe' at Burin, the latter ship having been up at Fortune before she had orders to return. Is it lack of system or what?—Com.
