

Disclosure

Updated: 19 October 2020

For me to be completely transparent and make sure I meet all legal requirements I have to tell you, my reader, that this site contains affiliate marketing links.

What does that mean, the short explanation; I receive a small commission every time you purchase something through one of the links on this site. Note that there is no additional cost to you for any purchases made. There are also some adverts on the site which I have received payment for.

You also need to know that I receive free books for review from Penguin Random House, Onlinebookclub.org and directly from authors from time to time. The free books I receive in no way impact the reviews I write. I remain completely honest in my opinion of a book regardless of where the book came from.

Tinka and Norton would like to add a thank you to this disclosure, as any commission earned from this site goes towards food and toys for them when mom isn't buying more books to read.