Directions

After reading several Gingerbread books have the students write their own Gingerbread story. They decide who will make the gingerbread person. They write down what it is made of. They also pick 3 characters that he runs away from and what says to them as he runs away. Finally the students pick what happens to the person in the end. Then they write the story using the prewriting organizer.

When they are ready to publish their work they can use the Gingerbread paper to write the final story. The first page is the cover. The students can write the title and their name. Make multiple copies of the lined paper.
