RE: Students' Right to Wear Tribal Regalia

CONTACT: Henry Strom, Executive Director, Office of Native Education
360-918-3953, henry.strom@k12.wa.us

PURPOSE/BACKGROUND

In 2020, the Washington State Legislature affirmed inherent rights assured through tribal sovereignty and expressly provided that school districts must allow American Indian and Alaskan Native K–12 and higher education students who are members of federally recognized tribes to wear tribal regalia and objects of cultural significance along with or attached to a gown at graduation ceremonies and related events (House Bill 2551). In addition, school districts and institutions of higher education are required, when necessary, to update relevant policies or procedures in accordance with this law.

School district leaders and staff are encouraged to promptly consult with tribal nations and collaborate with Native American parent and family advisory committees and Native American education leaders to develop policies, procedures, and practices associated with the law. It is critical that districts work in a timely manner to resolve any potential issues regarding cultural inclusivity prior to district or school ceremonies and events.
