

August 9 is

Indigenous People's Day

An international holiday, Indigenous People's Day honors the triumphs, cultures, and history of Indigenous people across the world.

Here are 5 ways we can celebrate Indigenous American culture.

Tell the real Native American story.

Learn the true history of Indigenous people in America - a rich and complex story that goes beyond simple narratives of poverty and defeat.

Integrate Tribal causes into DEI programs.

DEI initiatives often omit Native Americans from their focus on disadvantaged groups.

Celebrate Native achievement.

Put a spotlight on Native innovations in sports, science, the arts, technology, and government.

Offer culturally informed healthcare resources.

Culturally responsive care can improve Native patient outcomes by reflecting Tribal values and traditional practices.

Support Tribal rights and reparations.

Reparations can include the return of stolen land, the honoring of old treaties, legal Sovereignty, and the official recognition of forced boarding schools.