HERE'S THE GIST OF THE SAT:

- An SAT (Scholastic Assessment Test) is a standardized test that the College Board conducts for high school students who want to join college.
- You will be tested on your written, verbal and mathematical skills.
- These tests are sometimes considered by colleges in the US and Canada. When we mean sometimes, it's because most colleges have gone test optional.

The Digital SAT is a modernized version of the widely recognized college admissions exam, the SAT. It replaces the traditional paper-and-pencil format with an interactive online platform. This digital format offers students a user-friendly interface, allowing them to navigate through the test sections with ease.

Paper SAT	Digital SAT
Total duration is 3 hours	Total Duration is 2 hours and 14 minutes
Total number of questions: 154	Total number of questions: 98
Reading, Writing and Math are considered 3 different sections	Reading and Writing has been combined into one section
There is a set format of questions that are identical for all test takers	The difficulty of Module 2 will depend on the performance of the student in Module 1. Questions will vary for each student.
Calculator is not allowed for 1 out of 2 sections	The use of calculator is permitted for the entire math section
Reading section: 5 long passages Writing section: 4 passages with multiple choice questions under it	There are 54 very short passages where there's only one question each tied to it.
Takes time to get the results	Students will get their score just after a few days of taking the test
There are 4 separate sections (reading, writing, math with and without calculator) with a different time duration for each	Both the sections are each split into two modules. Each of these modules in their respective sections have the same time duration and number of questions. Reading and Writing: 33 questions for 32 minutes each (total 66 questions) Math: 27 questions for 35 minutes each (total 54 questions)

SAT ENGLISH

SAT VS. ACT

ACT[®]

The SAT and ACT are two standardized tests used by colleges and universities in the United States for admissions decisions. While both tests assess a student's knowledge and skills, they have some key differences that set them apart.

SAT	ACT
98 questions with a total test time of 2 hours and 14 minutes. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 54 questions for Reading and Writing • 44 questions for Math 	215 questions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 54 questions for English • 60 questions for Math • 40 questions for Reading • 40 questions for Science
Digital - Computer based	Traditional pen-and-paper method and computer based for international test takers
Section Adaptive - There are 2 modules for each of the 2 sections. Depending on the performance of module 1, the second module can be easy or difficult.	Increasing question difficulty for math and science sections
Test consists of sections on Evidence-Based Reading and Writing and Math. Total score is 1600. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 800 for R&W • 800 for Math 	includes sections on English, Math, Reading, Science, and an optional essay. Total score is 36 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1-36 for each of the 4 sections • A composite-average score of the 4 sections is given out of 36

Colleges that historically favored the SAT include Ivy League universities such as Harvard University, Yale University, and Princeton University, as well as other selective institutions like Stanford University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). However, some of these schools have transitioned to test-optional policies in recent years, diminishing the emphasis on standardized test scores.

On the other hand, colleges that historically favored the ACT include public universities in the Midwest and South, such as University of Michigan, University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, University of Alabama, and University of Texas at Austin. These schools have traditionally seen a higher proportion of applicants submitting ACT scores.
