

What to Expect with Your VYVGART™ Treatment

WHAT IS THE THERAPY?

- In order to treat your Myasthenia Gravis, your doctor has ordered an infusible medication called VYVGART™, also known as infusion therapy
- Infusion therapy is the administration of a medication through a thin catheter in your vein, also called “intravenous therapy or IV therapy”

WHAT SHOULD YOU EXPECT?

- Soleo will verify your health insurance benefits and obtain prior authorization for treatment
- Once insurance authorization is approved, Soleo will conduct a welcome call and schedule your first infusion. Additionally, a member of Soleo’s Myasthenia Gravis (MG) Therapeutic Care Management Center (TCMC) will call to perform an initial assessment of your condition prior to dispensing your medication
- VYVGART must be administered by a registered nurse and we offer the flexibility of receiving the infusion in the comfort of your home or in Soleo’s ambulatory infusion center (AIC), where available. Please plan for three hours for your infusion appointments
 - If you receive your infusion in a Soleo AIC, please arrive at your scheduled appointment time for the nurse to administer your medication. The nurse will monitor you for 60 minutes following each infusion
 - If you receive your infusion at home, the medication and supplies will be delivered directly to your home prior to the scheduled dose. The nurse will arrive at your home at the arranged appointment time to administer your medication and will monitor you for 60 minutes following each infusion
- A nurse and pharmacist are on-call 24/7 if you have any questions or needs
- A team member from Soleo’s MG TCMC will contact you to evaluate how you are doing with your infusion therapy. The assessments will review your response to therapy, medication side effects, and your overall wellness. These assessments will be performed one week after your first infusion, and again 7 weeks after the first infusion. This will help determine whether you will need another treatment cycle with VYVGART

WHAT DOES IT COST?

- The cost will vary, but most health insurance will cover your medication and the individual patient responsibility will depend on your benefit plan. Soleo Health will work with your doctor and your insurance provider to verify benefit and insurance coverage
- Our reimbursement specialists will inform you of your deductible and copay responsibility prior to your first infusion and can develop a payment plan that works for you, if necessary. We will bill your insurance provider directly for services provided, as appropriate
- A dedicated reimbursement specialist is available to answer any questions you may have
