

The
Cambridge
Learner
Attributes

CONFIDENT

Confident learners are inquisitive and collaborative problem-solvers that persevere and overcome obstacles.

- I have confidence that if I try, I can overcome obstacles.
- I do not allow challenges and confusion to stop me from learning.

Malala Yousafzai
Pakistani activist for female education and the youngest
Nobel Prize laureate.

The
Cambridge
Learner
Attributes

RESPONSIBLE

Responsible learners make good choices, accept consequences for their actions and respect their teachers, peers and school.

- I make amendments and corrections, not excuses.
- I do what is right and respect all those around me.

Boyan Slat

Dutch inventor, entrepreneur and aerospace engineering student drop-out who is the CEO of The Ocean Cleanup.

The
Cambridge
Learner
Attributes

REFLECTIVE

Reflective learners improve their weaknesses and build on their strengths through self-evaluation.

- I evaluate my learning by thinking about what I have done well and consider ways I can improve.
- I reflect on my performances and choices.

Ann Makosinski

Canadian student inventor and public speaker. She won the Google Science Fair in 2013 for her thermoelectric flashlight.

The
Cambridge
Learner
Attributes

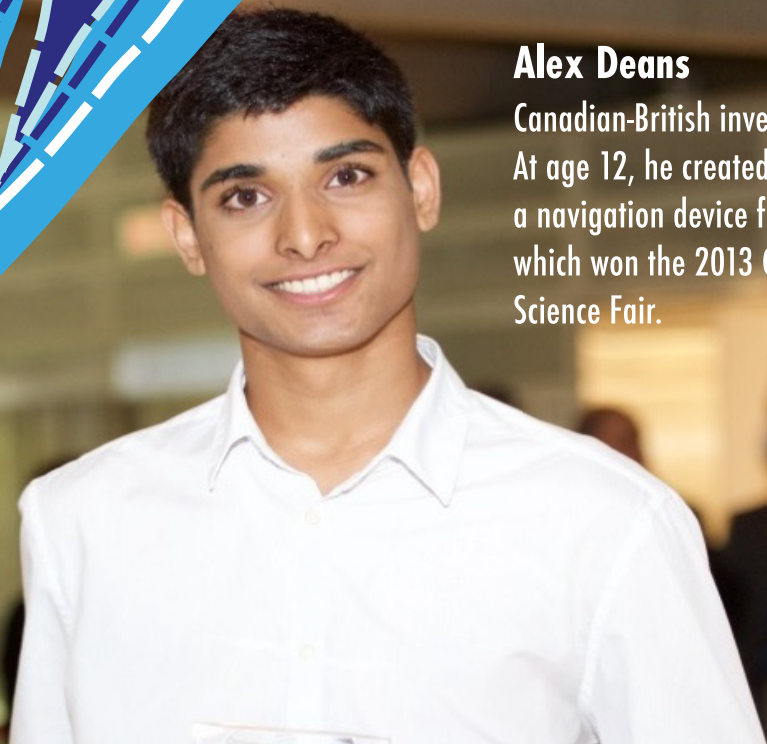

INNOVATIVE

Innovative learners are flexible and develop problem solving skills by collaborating with others and looking at problems from a variety of perspectives.

- I use my knowledge and skills to design and adapt solutions for familiar and new problems.
- I realise that change provides new opportunities for alternate solutions.

Alex Deans

Canadian-British inventor.
At age 12, he created the "iAid",
a navigation device for the blind
which won the 2013 Canada-Wide
Science Fair.

The Cambridge Learner Attributes

ENGAGED

Engaged learners concentrate and focus on their intended goal until completion.

- I dig deeper into understanding ideas and concepts.
- I do my best to make my classroom, community and world a better place.

Emma Gonzalez

American activist and advocate for gun control. As a high school senior she survived the 2018 Stoneman Douglas High School shooting in Florida, and in response co-founded the gun-control advocacy group Never Again MSD.

The Cambridge Learner Attributes

LEARN, ACHIEVE, DISCOVER

CONFIDENT

Confident learners are inquisitive and collaborative problem-solvers that persevere and overcome obstacles.

- I have confidence that if I try, I can overcome obstacles.
- I do not allow challenges and confusion to stop me from learning.

Malala Yousafzai
Pakistani activist for female education and the youngest Nobel Prize laureate.

REFLECTIVE

Reflective learners improve their weaknesses and build on their strengths through self-evaluation.

- I evaluate my learning by thinking about what I have done well and consider ways I can improve.
- I reflect on my performances and choices.

Ann Makosinski
Canadian student inventor and public speaker. She won the Google Science Fair in 2013 for her thermoelectric flashlight.

RESPONSIBLE

Responsible learners make good choices, accept consequences for their actions and respect their teachers, peers and school.

- I make amendments and corrections, not excuses.
- I do what is right and respect all those around me.

Boyan Slat
Dutch inventor, entrepreneur and aerospace engineering student drop-out who is the CEO of The Ocean Cleanup.

INNOVATIVE

Innovative learners are flexible and develop problem solving skills by collaborating with others and looking at problems from a variety of perspectives.

- I use my knowledge and skills to design and adapt solutions for familiar and new problems.
- I realise that change provides new opportunities for alternate solutions.

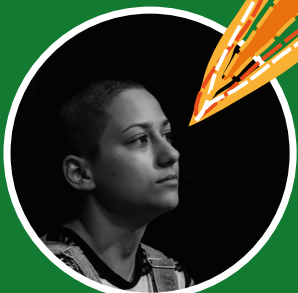

Alex Deans
Canadian-British inventor. At age 12, he created the "iAid", a navigation device for the blind which won the 2013 Canada-Wide Science Fair.

ENGAGED

Engaged learners concentrate and focus on their intended goal until completion.

- I dig deeper into understanding ideas and concepts.
- I do my best to make my classroom, community and world a better place.

Emma Gonzalez
American activist and advocate for gun control. As a high school senior she survived the 2018 Stoneman Douglas High School shooting in Florida, and in response co-founded the gun-control advocacy group Never Again MSD.