Tales from the River Bank

The Clapboard House on the edge of a stream is as popular with the local wildlife as it is with Paula and her family. Reminding her of the American Cape Cod houses she so admired when she first saw it advertised she didn't hesitate to go and see it and immediately fell in love! Fortunately her husband and children felt the same and so they left London and moved into their dream home; Paula starts every morning watching the ever changing wild-life from the deck.
