Fiction & Non-fiction

WEIDENFELD & NICOLSON is one of the most prestigious and dynamic literary imprints in British and international publishing, home of ground-breaking, award-winning, thought-provoking books since 1949. Our passion for extraordinary writing dates back to our two founders, George Weidenfeld and Nigel Nicolson, who were responsible for introducing some of the twentieth century's most remarkable voices – Vladimir Nabokov, Isaiah Berlin, Sybille Bedford, Eric Hobsbawm, Edna O'Brien, Jorge Luis Borges and many others – to a wide readership. They launched their publishing house with the idea of building bridges and opening minds through exceptional works of literature; we have been carrying on their legacy ever since. We publish history, memoir, ideas, popular science, biography, narrative non-fiction, crime and thrillers, translated fiction and literary fiction of all kinds.

God's Children Are Little Broken Things

Arinze Ifeakandu

Florida, USA

@arinzeifeakandu

@Ary_ifeakandu

A man revisits the university campus where he lost his first love, aware now of what he couldn't understand then . . .

A young musician rises to fame at the price of pieces of himself, and the man who loves him . . .

Arinze Ifeakandu explores with tenderness and grace the fundamental question of the heart: can deep love and hope be sustained in spite of the dominant expectations of society, and great adversity?

ARINZE IFEAKANDU was born in Kano, Nigeria. An AKO Caine Prize for African Writing finalist and A Public Space Writing Fellow, he is a graduate of the Iowa Writers' Workshop and is pursuing his PhD at Florida State University. God's Children Are Little Broken Things is his first book.

Two identical twin sisters and former child actors have grown apart – until one disappears. From the New York Times bestselling author of Pretty Things

As children, Sam and Elli were two halves of a perfect whole: gorgeous identical twins and B-list child TV stars, often inhabiting the same role.

But as adults, their lives have splintered. After leaving acting, Elli reinvented herself as the perfect homemaker while Sam never recovered from her failed Hollywood career.

The two sisters haven't spoken in years, but when Elli mysteriously disappears, Sam realises that the bond between her and her sister is more complicated than she ever knew.

JANELLE BROWN is the New York Times bestselling author of Pretty Things, soon to be turned into an Amazon Prime series starring Nicole Kidman. She lives in Los Angeles.

'An extraordinary novel, spiny and delicate, scathingly funny and wildly moving. Every ringing sentence holds both bite and heart' LAUREN GROFF

Sneha occupies her days with corporate work and her nights with ordering furniture off the internet, and meeting women on dating apps. The rewards are bountiful: the vertigo of young life in a new and expanding city, budding friendships, an obsession with a ballet dancer who she runs into again and again, and the ability to send money by wire transfer to her parents two oceans away in India. Piece by piece she gathers the fragments of a good life. But then the walls start to creep in . . .

A memoir about love, heartbreak, sex and celibacy, growing up and starting again

'Alluring, shocking, welcome and wonderful' LISA TADDEO

What happens when your story doesn't end the way you thought it would? When the dream life you have been working towards becomes something you must walk away from?

When you swap a Hollywood marriage and an LA mansion with waterside views for a little attic flat shared only with your daughter, beneath the star-filled sky of deepest north London?

When you find yourself not lonely, but elated – elated to be alone with yourself, who you genuinely thought you might never get to see again?

EMMA FORREST's memoir Your Voice in My Head is beloved by Nick Hornby, Dolly Alderton, Bryony Gordon, Florence Welch and Elizabeth Gilbert. Her latest novel, Royals, was a BBC Radio 2 Book Club pick.

The Last Colony

A Tale of Exile, Justice and Britain's Colonial Legacy

Philippe Sands

London, UK

 @philippesands

The story of the landmark international judgment that brought an end to Britain's colonial rule in Africa

In the 1960s, Britain secretly offered the US a base in the Chagos Archipelago, created a new colony and deported the population. For four decades the Mauritian government fought for Chagos's return, and for the past decade Philippe Sands has been intimately involved in the cases. In 2018 British and American lawlessness was finally challenged in the World Court. Fourteen international judges faced a landmark decision: would they rule that Britain illegally detached Chagos from Mauritius? Would the Chagossians return home – or be exiled forever?

PHILIPPE SANDS QC has worked on many of the most important recent international cases, including Pinochet, Rwanda, Iraq, Guantanamo and the Rohingya. He is the author of East West Street and The Ratline.

From no. 1 bestselling author Laura Barnett comes a novel about motherhood, second chances and choosing your own family

At forty-three, Christina knew her future: marriage to Ed, children, a house. But this is not that future: her marriage has ended, fractured by the stress of five IVF rounds and two miscarriages. Ed has relocated to San Francisco and Christina's dream of motherhood rests on persuading him to let her do one final IVF round. But when Ed drops a bombshell, Christina is forced, again, to realign her plans: is this the end of her dream, or a chance at a different, happier future?

All the Knowledge in the World

The Extraordinary History of the Encyclopaedia

Simon Garfield

www.simongarfield.com

A gloriously illuminating history of the encyclopaedia by the bestselling author of Just My Type and On the Map

From Ancient Greece to Wikipedia, from modest single-volumes to the 11,000-volume Chinese manuscript that was too big to print, All the Knowledge in the World looks at how Encyclopaedia Britannica came to dominate the industry, how it spawned hundreds of competitors and how an army of ingenious door-to-door salesmen sold their wares to guilt-ridden parents. It explains how encyclopaedias have reflected our changing attitudes towards sexuality, race and technology, and exposes how these ultimate bastions of trust were often riddled with errors and prejudice.

SIMON GARFIELD's previous titles include the international bestsellers Just My Type, On the Map, Dog's Best Friend and Mauve. His study of AIDS in Britain, The End of Innocence, won the Somerset Maugham Award.

Harold Wilson

The Winner

Nicklaus Thomas-Symonds

Torfaen, UK

www.nickthomassymonds.uk

@NickTorfaen

A fresh look at Harold Wilson, Labour prime minister 1964–1970 and 1974–1976

Using previously restricted materials, this fascinating biography tackles Wilson's widespread reputation as a prime minister who should be remembered for political machination over constructive achievement. Instead, Thomas-Symonds makes the case for Wilson as one of the twentieth century's great politicians. With considerable skill, he led his party and the country through acute economic difficulty and profound social change. With a brilliant mind, sure-footed political moves and a feel for public opinion, Wilson was a survivor who emerged from crises to defeat political opponents time and time again.

NICKLAUS THOMAS-SYMONDS is MP for Torfaen and the Shadow Secretary of State for International Trade. A lawyer and academic, he is also the author of acclaimed biographies of Clement Attlee and Nye Bevan.

Love and Let Die

Bond, The Beatles and the British Psyche

John Higgs

Brighton, UK

@john.higgs

@johnhiggs

An exploration of the unexpected connections between two titans of British culture and what they tell us about class, male identity and our aspirations

The Beatles are the biggest band there has ever been. James Bond is the single most successful movie character of all time. They are also twins. Dr No, the first Bond film, and 'Love Me Do', the first Beatles record, were both released on 5 October 1962. This is a story about two opposite aspects of the British psyche exploding into global culture; about a clash between working-class liberation and establishment control. It is also an account of our aspirations and fantasies, and of competing visions of male identity.

JOHN HIGGS is the author of I Have America Surrounded, The KLF, Stranger Than We Can Imagine, Watling Street, The Future Starts Here, William Blake Now and William Blake vs the World.

A fascinating deep dive into the neuroscience of the post-partum brain that will change the conversation about parenthood

When Chelsea Conaboy became pregnant, she anticipated the joy, the sleepless nights. She didn't expect a deep and disorientating shift in self. Scientists recently discovered that the hormonal surge at childbirth initiates changes in the mother's brain designed to meet the baby's basic needs, then prepares her for a longer period of learning to parent. Weaving together neuroscience, social psychology and new reporting, Conaboy explores the myths and realities of the post-partum brain, including generations of scientific neglect and societal pressures that have perpetuated a narrow, romanticised view.

CHELSEA CONABOY is a journalist, specialising in personal and public health. She was part of the Boston Globe's Pulitzer Prize-winning team for coverage of the Boston Marathon Bombing.

Diary of a Tuscan Bookshop

Alba Donati

Tuscany, Italy

The diary of a woman who opened a bookshop in a small village in Tuscany. A personal memoir and an uplifting tale of resilience

Alba used to live a hectic life – a life filled with excitement but one that made her feel like a woman on the run. Until one day she decided to go back to Lucignana, the village in the Tuscan hills where she was born, and open a tiny bookshop.

Alba's enterprise seems doomed from day one, but it sparks the enthusiasm of many across Italy. And after surviving a fire and the restrictions imposed by the pandemic, the Bookshop on the Hill soon becomes a refuge for an ever-growing community of readers.

ALBA DONATI worked for years as a publicist in Italian publishing before moving back to her home village of Lucignana to open the Bookshop on the Hill. An award-winning poet, this is her first work of non-fiction.

Exploring the World

Two Centuries of Remarkable
Adventurers and Their Journeys

Alexander Maitland

London, UK

A one-volume history of exploration told through the stories of the Royal Geographical Society's remarkable gold medal winners

For nearly two hundred years, the Society has been awarding gold medals to those individuals who have contributed most to our geographical knowledge. Winners of the Founder's and Patron's medals now number around 300 individuals, and telling their stories is nothing less than a history of exploration itself. Exploring the World marvels at the indomitable courage, determination and perceptive insights of an exceptional group of men and women; and aims to investigate and retell – or, in some instances, tell for the first time – their extraordinary stories.

ALEXANDER MAITLAND is an RGS Fellow of long standing, who has written books on John Hanning Speke and Wilfred Thesiger among others.

My Life in Food A Memoir Albert Roux

Deceased

The memoir of a culinary hero who inspired generations of home cooks and chefs

Albert Roux, together with his brother, Michel, transformed the way we eat, cook and appreciate food in Britain. His story begins as a child in wartime France, where the looming presence of the German troops made it difficult to keep the family fed, and takes us right up to the almost instant success of Le Gavroche, which welcomed everybody from Princess Diana to Charlie Chaplin. These are the last words from a pioneer, a hero who inspired entire generations of chefs. They tell the story not only of a titan of a man, but of an era that shaped how we cook and eat today.

ALBERT ROUX OBE was a French-British restaurateur and chef, and the godfather of modern British cooking. In 1967, Albert and his brother, Michel, opened Le Gavroche, the restaurant that revolutionised the British dining scene and the first three Michelin starred restaurant in the country. An inspirational figure, Albert was awarded an OBE, the Légion d'honneur and a papal knighthood.

An Intimate History of Breastfeeding

Joanna Wolfarth

London, UK

@joanna_wolfarth
 @JoannaWolfarth

The first major work of popular history on breastfeeding

As a breastfed baby herself, Joanna Wolfarth assumed it would come easily, yet weeks after giving birth she was in hospital with an underweight baby. As a cultural historian, Joanna's impulse was to look to the past. What she discovered amazed and reassured her. Using her own experience, Milk is an intimate cultural survey of infant-feeding that draws on artworks, philosophical treatises, historical medical devices, folk wisdom and contemporary interviews with women from across the world to reveal how infant-feeding has been represented and repressed, celebrated and censored.

JOANNA WOLFARTH is a cultural historian. She is a visiting lecturer in Southeast Asian Art at SOAS, University of London and an Associate Lecturer at Sotheby's Institute of Art.

How Indigenous Americans
Discovered Europe

Caroline Dodds Pennock

Sheffield, UK

 @carolinepennock

A major work of history by the UK's only Aztec historian, exploring how the great civilisations of the Americas discovered Europe

Global history began in the late fifteenth century, when the 'Old World' discovered the 'New'. We are told Christopher Columbus 'discovered' America in 1492. But at the same instant, the great civilisations of Mesoamerica – the Aztecs, Mayans and Totonacs – discovered Europe. Tens of thousands of Indigenous Americans made the journey across the Atlantic, but their experiences have been written out of mainstream accounts: from the Mayan king who met Henry VIII, to the Inuit who harpooned ducks on the Avon, their stories changed the course of European civilisation.

CAROLINE DODDS PENNOCK is a senior lecturer in international history at the University of Sheffield and the UK's only Aztec historian. Her first book, Bonds of Blood, won the Royal Historical Society's Gladstone Prize.

The Stirrings

Catherine Taylor

London, UK

 @KatyaTaylor

A memoir of growing up in northern England in the 1970s and 1980s

The Stirrings is a memoir set against the backdrop of Sheffield as a post-industrial city, the serial killer who stalked Yorkshire throughout the author's childhood, the miners' strike, the threat of nuclear war and her growing interest in CND and the women's peace camp at Greenham Common. It is also a story about a body altering forever through illness, burgeoning sexuality and emotional incarceration, and how violence can forever shape the imagination and the psyche.

Launched in March 2021, W&N Essentials is a delightfully varied list of literary jewels. The list is home to fiction and non-fiction; to books that are already studied on university syllabi; and to cult classics ahead of their time, ripe for mainstream recognition. Each one is a book of the highest quality, and adored by those who have already discovered it, has stood the test of time and will burn as brightly – or even more brightly – as it did on first publication. Each book will be published as a paperback original, with an introduction from a contemporary author. We have a subtle series look, but each will have an elegant, distinctive cover of its own.

Unspoken Truths about
Motherhood

Marianne Levy

@MarianneLevy

A powerfully moving and radically honest collection of essays that explores the emotional and psychological impact of motherhood

Like grief or falling in love, having a child is an experience both ordinary and transformative. But alongside the joy and wonder and sleeplessness and pain, it can also be profoundly destabilising. In this frank, funny and fearless exploration of what it means to become a mother, Marianne Levy confronts the unspoken truths of its lifelong impact.

This is the real story of being a parent in the modern world. It is a book that mothers will be glad to have read – and everyone else should read, too.

MARIANNE LEVY is a writer and journalist. She is the author of several children's books and has written for the Independent, i, Guardian and others.

A timely and beautiful story of identity, community and belonging – and an unlikely friendship that changes two lives forever

The high street is dying, and with it Rupert's eclectic charity shop. Since losing his wife, he has tried to continue their shared dream, but he is close to giving up. Most won't miss it, but for Kwasi, the shop is a sanctuary from pressures at school and home. Kwasi and Rupert forge an unlikely friendship, finding purpose in working to save this treasured space. But as tensions escalate around them, both face difficult choices that force them to reconsider all they thought they knew.

SUSSIE ANIE completed a creative writing MA at University of East Anglia, where she received the 2018–19 Kowitz Scholarship. Her writing was shortlisted for the White Review Short Story Prize 2020.

Paper Cuts

How I Destroyed the British Music
Press and Other Misadventures

Ted Kessler

The highs and the lows of a life spent on the frontline of music journalism

For thirty years Ted Kessler worked at the coalface of the British music press, holding senior staff positions on two of the most prestigious British music magazines, NME and Q. Then, at the height of the pandemic, it all fell apart. Full of the ego, squabbles and epiphanies that dominated the NME/Q shop floors and featuring walk-ons from a heady cast of Britpop-period characters, Paper Cuts tells the story of the golden years and the dying days of print journalism from a battle-hardened survivor.

TED KESSLER was on the staff of NME as a writer and editor between 1993 and 2003, before joining Q magazine's staff, where he was eventually promoted to editor.

The prequel to the critically acclaimed and award-winning This Is Memorial Device

Set in Airdrie in the late 1960s through the 1970s, Industry of Magic and Light features the return of several of the main characters from David Keenan's debut, This Is Memorial Device. Part oral history and inventory, part occult detective novel and travelogue, Keenan's sixth novel is an archaeological unearthing of the hippie counterculture on the west coast of Scotland as it may, or may not, have existed. A prequel to a cult classic that also stands alone as a work of imaginative alchemy in its own fictional universe.

DAVID KEENAN is the author of This Is Memorial Device, which won the London Magazine Prize; For the Good Times, which won the Gordon Burn Prize; The Towers The Fields The Transmitters, Xstabeth and Monument Maker.

The story of Mogwai, one of the most influential and revered Scottish bands, told by its founder and lead band member

Stuart Braithwaite grew up the son of Scotland's last remaining telescope-maker so was, perhaps, destined for a career in a cosmically revelatory and radical psychedelic rock band. From early gigs at Glasgow Barrowlands as a teenage fan of bands like The Cure and The Jesus and Mary Chain, to headlining festivals with Mogwai, Spaceships over Glasgow is an unflinching portrait of life on the road and in the studio, creating magic and occasionally mayhem.

The definitive oral history of Scottish postpunk, Postcard and Fast Product, from Glasgow to Edinburgh, the Human League to Orange Juice

Hungry Beat is principally the story of two maverick Scottish independent music labels that changed the landscape of British music and created 'indie': Fast Product and Postcard. Covering the period 1977–1984, beginning with the revolutionary impact of Subway Sect, through to Bob Last taking the Human League from experimental electronic group to creators of the no.1 single 'Don't You Want Me', the book is built on interviews with Last, Alan Horne, Hilary Morrison, Paul Morley, Scars, Fire Engines, Orange Juice, The Go-Betweens and many more.

DOUGLAS MACINTYRE was a key part of the Scottish postpunk scene and since 1994 has operated The Creeping Bent Organisation, the Scottish independent label viewed as a successor to Fast Product and Postcard.

Faster than a Cannonball

1995, Britpop and All That
Dylan Jones

London, UK
@dylanjones

From New Labour to Britpop, Dylan Jones's epic survey of the omnivorous decade when everything seemed to accelerate

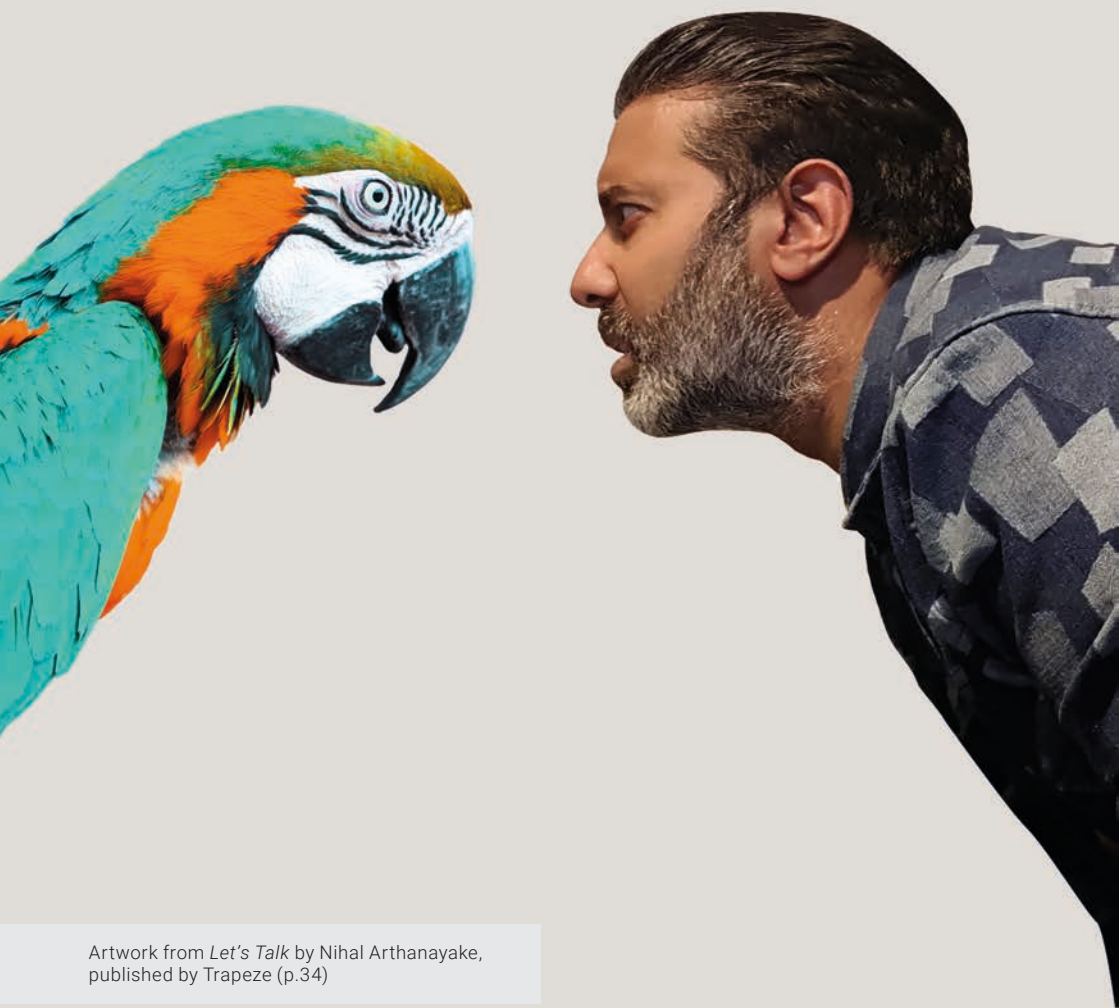

This book is a cultural swipe of the 1990s, a decade that in many ways was the mirror of the much more mythologised 1960s. A moment of unparalleled hedonism, the 1990s were the last time rock stars, journalists and pop consumers held onto a belief in rock and pop's mystical power. It was also a period of huge cultural upheaval – in art, politics, literature, publishing, fashion and drugs. This book documents the highs, the lows and the misdemeanours, using interviews with the major dramatis personae, from Hirst to Emin, Albarn to Gallagher.

New York Times bestselling author DYLAN JONES has written over twenty books on music, politics, fashion and photography. In 2012 he was awarded an OBE for services to publishing.

Charlie Eccleshare

 @CDEccleshare

An essential stocking filler for anyone who loves the beautiful words that accompany the beautiful game

When you think of the most iconic moments in football, it often isn't just the images that you remember. Usually, they are accompanied by an ingenious line of commentary, perfectly capturing the moment. The commentator is an intrinsic part of our football-watching experience and, in many ways, they are the poets of our time. Yes, really.

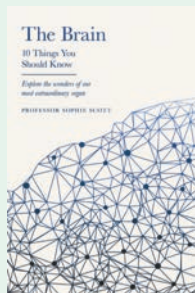

From Peter Drury's eloquent monologues to Robbie Savage's savaging of the English language, the beautiful game has given us some poetic, and not so poetic, commentary throughout the ages.

Katherine Morgan Schafler

New York, USA

A guide to celebrating perfectionism that offers a strengths-based approach on how to be, without giving up who you are

Did you know that there are five types of perfectionists?

Did you know that you won't find a single book on perfectionism that concludes with any message except, 'Stop being a perfectionist'?

This is dead wrong. The way to make progress with perfectionists is to first clarify that there's nothing wrong with being a perfectionist. Then it's to call them out on what's not working and offer a healthy way to fix these issues, without treating perfectionism like a nasty flu your personality might catch.

The stories of 100 flowers from around the world and how they've each shaped the way we live

Throughout history flowers have been an integral part of human survival and culture – as food, for medicine, to express feelings, to commemorate, celebrate and to decorate. This delightful new book brings together 100 of the world's flowers to tell their remarkable stories – from the saffron crocus's prized role in spice production, to how daisies and daffodils represent purity and unrequited love. Each flower is richly hand-illustrated and accompanied by facts about each species and the fascinating role it has played in our culture and history.

DR NOEL KINSBURY is an internationally known writer on horticulture and has contributed to the Daily Telegraph, the Guardian and the New York Times. His previous books include Natural Garden Style and Garden Flora.

Laurence King Publishing Gift List

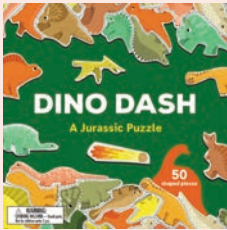

LAURENCE KING PUBLISHING started its gift list in 2012. For a book publisher, this was a way of publishing books by other means, using new formats, from stationery to games, to carry content in playful, informal and interactive ways.

This season, we have been busy expanding our range of inventive products from children's games through to smart gifts for adults. Your kids are bound to find Pooper Heroes and Sea Monsters & Rainbows both hilarious and electrifying. The environment is obviously a big concern, and your family will be able to help raise awareness and save animals with Endangered Animals Bingo. Self-care is more of a concern than ever in these difficult times, and products such as our new series of emotions-based gradient puzzles, or our Therapy Toolkit deck, will help put you into a positive frame of mind.

Above all, we hope these will continue to do what our best gifts have always done: to allow you and your family to discover new worlds in fun and exciting ways.

One of the world's most celebrated science fiction authors is back, exploring post-human Earth and its secret histories

200,000 years in the future. Humanity is extinct, the ruins of its cities fossilised. After a civilisation of intelligent bears collapses following a plague, their former slaves, descendants of racoons, have driven the former masters northward and built a new civilisation.

Peaceful and emphasising harmony with nature and co-operation, but with strict genders roles, they settled the American continent and started exploring the world. But mysterious sightings are being reported. Who are these visitors? Where are they from, and what do they want?

PAUL McAULEY has a PhD in botany and worked as an academic before becoming a full-time novelist. His first novel, 400 Billion Stars, won the 1988 Philip K. Dick Award.

The fourth instalment in the USA Today bestselling Heirs of Chicagoland series, in which Elisa unearths an ancient grudge with devastating consequences

Elisa Sullivan always knew her life was going to be . . . unusual. But she always wanted to make her own way in the world, likely away from her famous family. Elisa had to steady her nerves and sharpen her steel, to fight for the city of Chicago.

Elisa agrees to escort a troubled sorcerer to Chicago for training, but they inadvertently set in motion a scheme of long-awaited magical vengeance. The city may pay an arcane price it can't afford, unless they rise to the challenge.

Some Girls Bite was CHLOE NEILL's debut novel and the first in the Chicagoland Vampires series. She is the author of the YA Dark Elite series and the Devil's Isle series.

An epic, decades-spanning science fiction mystery from the award-winning author of The Separation and The Prestige

1877: John Smith was arrested for fraud, tricking women into thinking he was rich, then stealing their belongings.

1852: Adler and Adolf Beck's father died on a glacier expedition, and their lives separated. One became a climate scientist, one an opera singer. They remained in touch, to share the mysterious voices only they could hear.

2050: Charles and Greg Ramsey are twins, and the family secrets echo back decades.

These people are connected, their lives intersect. The climate of their world will keep on changing.

CHRISTOPHER PRIEST has built his reputation as a literary novelist and a leading figure in SFF. His novel The Prestige is unique in winning both major literary and genre prizes.

The end of the world is inevitable. We do not accept it

In AD 2145, John Hackett's adventure is just beginning.

In Year 30, Mela's story is coming to a close.

Hackett is a time traveller. His new mission will lead him to Andromeda, a mission that will take him five million years.

Mela's world is coming to an end. Erosion is eating away at the edges of every land mass.

A beautiful, page-turning story that interweaves the tale of these two characters, separated by both space and time, in a hopeful exploration of humanity's future.

STEPHEN BAXTER is the pre-eminent SF writer of his generation. With Terry Pratchett he has co-authored The Long Earth novels. Published around the world, he has also won major awards.

Roadmarks

Roger Zelazny

Deceased

Time is relative, and when you live outside time it can be hard to work out where you fit in Red Dorakeen has been on the Road for a long time. For all of time, in fact. It stretches infinitely through history, taking him wherever, or whenever, he wants to go.

Except where he wants to be.

He's not alone on the Road. As people join and leave, they alter the timelines to suit their whims. Exits disappear as things change and working out how to bring them back could take . . . forever.

Fortunately, Red has all the time he could ever need.

ROGER ZELAZNY's critically acclaimed works have become legendary within SFF, with many contemporary writers citing him as an influence. He died in 1995 but his impact lives on.

The third novel in the critically hailed The Legacy of the Mercenary King series, described as 'excellent' by Brandon Sanderson

Michael Kingman has discovered his destiny, but the distance to what he wants is as wide as the world, and just as cruel. Meanwhile, Michael's sometime mentor is trying to keep him in line to aid his own hidden agenda. Outclassed by powers that have been working for centuries to bring an end to a world filled with those he loves, Michael must gather his allies and do the impossible – the alternative is too awful to imagine.

NICK MARTELL majored in creative writing at Pennsylvania's Susquehanna University. He started writing novels regularly in fifth grade, and his debut novel is The Kingdom of Liars.

The exhilarating conclusion to the dystopian thriller series that started with Inscape, described as 'chillingly plausible' by Claire North

They stopped the murder of InTech's residents, but the cost was severe. Harlow 2.0 – the update to InTech's mind-based operating system – still fed out. Now its citizens are compliant zombies, and Tanta and her crew are trapped underground.

Except Fliss, who has no system to update. She can go outside, and the crew are relying on her to get them out.

If InTech's residents are to be free, Harlow 2.0 must be destroyed.

This last mission might ask more than Tanta's able to give.
