LOAD RITE AND 5 STARR

LOAD RITE has been manufacturing marine trailers for over four decades, and the 5 STARR model line has been part of the LOAD RITE family for more than a quarter century.

So what are the differences between them? Which will best serve your boating style? In truth, the two model lines are more similar than different. Both are engineered using the highest quality corrosion resistant components and share frame, axle and brake systems and a great warranty.

Whether ELITE or 5 STARR, galvanized or aluminum, bunk or roller, a long service life can be expected from every LOAD RITE brand trailer.

Since we know the similarities between the model lines, what are some of the subtle differences?

YOUR SAFETY AND TRAILER BRAKES

Brake laws vary by state and require dealers to sell trailers that comply with the brake laws of the state where the trailer will be registered. This is a very important safety issue. For full information contact the appropriate state Motor Vehicle Department. As always, for your safety, the safety of those in your party, and the safety of those around you, Load Rite recommends brakes on all axles where available.

ALUMINUM I-BEAM TRAILERS

LOAD RITE manufactures a wide range of I-beam models for V-hull, skiff, inboard, roller, and even Australian spec models. All are loaded with standard features such as such as Knott torsion axles, disc brakes (where installed) and LED lights intended to assure every journey is dependable, quiet, safe, and uneventful. Most tandem bunk models include target bunks. Elite models include standard PVC sideguides.

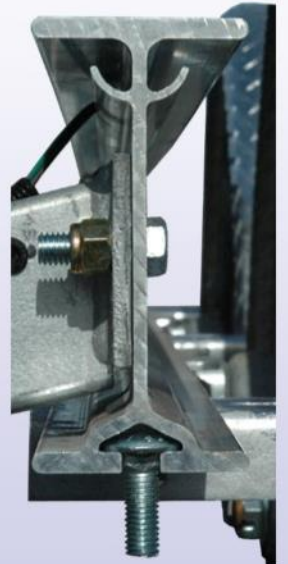

Each is available with a generous selection of options to enhance the trailering experience and maximize valuable time on the water. After all, that's what it's all about.
