Re: Request Pursuant to R. 4:38A for Multi-County Litigation Designation for Cases involving Bard Implanted Port Product

Dear Judge Grant:

Please accept this letter on behalf of three (3) Plaintiffs with cases currently pending in the Superior Court of New Jersey, involving Bard implanted ports designed, manufactured, promoted, marketed, distributed, and sold by Defendants C.R. Bard, Inc., Bard Access Systems, Inc., and Becton Dickinson and Company (collectively "Defendants"). See Complete List of Filed Cases, attached hereto as Exhibit A. It is estimated that 500 or more claimants will soon be filing in this State. Each of the pending cases are venued in Bergen County, where two of the three Defendants maintain principal places of business.

Plaintiffs seek to centralize cases involving implanted port products manufactured and distributed by the Defendants. Due to the ubiquity of implanted port products in the United States and the high complication rate associated with such products, Plaintiffs anticipate that hundreds of additional cases will be filed in the near future involving the same or similar products, injuries, claims, and alleged culpable parties. Multi-County Litigation (“MCL”) designation will promote judicial efficiency, facilitate coordinated discovery, avoid inconsistent pretrial rulings, and benefit the interests of all parties. Accordingly, as further explained below, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the cases listed in Exhibit A be given MCL designation pursuant to R. 4:38A.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs in these cases have filed civil actions for injuries caused by Defendants’ implanted port products (collectively the “Actions”). Each of the claims allege that: (1) the Plaintiff was implanted with a port product manufactured by the Defendants consisting of an injection reservoir and a flexible, polymeric catheter; (2) the catheter component of the port products was manufactured to include a radiopaque agent called barium sulfate, which is known to reduce the material integrity of the catheter when it is not encapsulated, coated or otherwise separated from the catheter surface; (3) the loss of exposed barium sulfate particles from the catheter surface leaves microfractures, fissures, and other alterations to the polymeric structure that in turn increase the likelihood of one or more of the injuries common to these products: catheter fracture, catheter infection, and thromboembolism; (4) Defendants misrepresented the safety of the port products; (5) Defendants negligently and fraudulently designed, marketed, distributed, and sold these products, (6) Defendants knew or should have known that these port products were not safe for the patients to whom they were prescribed and in whom they were implanted because once implanted, the products were prone to catheter fracture, bacterial colonization, potentiation of thromboembolism, and otherwise malfunctioning and causing serious injury; and (7) strict liability claims that these products were defective and unreasonably dangerous and lacked proper warnings. Additionally, all plaintiffs seek similar damages- pain, suffering, emotional distress, medical expenses and punitive damages. And expert testimony in these cases - from all parties - will have substantial overlap, and consolidation will streamline these efforts.

Shortly after the Defendants introduced these products into the market—and long before these Plaintiffs were implanted with them—Defendants received numerous adverse event reports (“AERs”) involving the types of device failures enumerated herein. These AERs were associated with severe injuries and complications, including hemorrhage, cardiac/pericardial tamponade, cardiac arrhythmia, infection, sepsis, thromboembolism, and even death. In many instances, the Defendants concealed known device failures and injuries from medical professionals and patients through submission to the FDA’s controversial Alternative Summary Reporting (“ASR”) program, which was in effect from 1997 through June of 2019. The ASR program permitted device manufacturers to request exemptions, variances, or alternatives to reporting requirements. In contrast with the FDA’s public Manufacturer and User Facility Device Experience (“MAUDE”) database, manufacturer reports of device failures submitted through the ASR program were not available to the public, including healthcare providers, until 2019. From 2004 to 2018 approximately 65% of all reported adverse events related to implanted port products (the vast majority of them associated with Defendants’ products) were reported through the non-public ASR program rather than MAUDE. The FDA halted its ASR program after its existence was exposed by a multi-part investigative report, prompting a widespread outcry from medical professionals and patient advocacy groups. The expert testimony on this issue which would invoke the question of punitive damages as well – again both from plaintiffs and defense-will have substantial overlap, and consolidation will streamline this issue as well.

More recently, published and peer-reviewed scientific literature has revealed the ubiquity and breadth of injuries related to implanted port products. In 2020, a large study evaluating the long-term complication profile associated with port placement was published.¹ The pool of participants of the study included 93,756 patients who had an implanted. The study's findings were striking: more than half – 59.04% of patients – experienced arrhythmogenic and thromboembolic complications or infection and mechanical failure of the device within 5 years after implantation. This complication rate is all the more staggering in light of the fact that: (1) implants of port products in the United States are estimated at over 300,000 annually, and (2) Defendants are the undisputed market leaders of implanted port products in the United States, accounting for more than fifty percent (50%) of domestic implanted port sales. These concerning findings follow numerous published studies over the last thirty years indicating that these common injuries are caused by the same unreasonably dangerous design elements alleged in the Actions. The Actions seek to hold Defendants liable for injuries caused by their wrongful conduct in connection with the design, development, manufacture, testing, packaging, promoting, marketing, distribution, labeling, and sale of their implanted port products.

MCL DESIGNATION IS APPROPRIATE

As set forth in the guidelines promulgated by Your Honor in Directive #02-19, multi-county litigation is warranted when a litigation, among other considerations, involves a large number of parties; many claims with common, recurrent issues of law and fact; there is geographical dispersion of parties; there is a high degree of commonality of injury or damages among plaintiffs; there is a value interdependence between different claims; and there is a degree of remoteness between the court and actual decision makers in the litigation. The guidelines also include the following considerations: whether centralized management is fair and convenient to the parties and witnesses; whether there is a risk of duplicative or inconsistent rulings if the cases are not coordinated; and whether coordinated discovery would be advantageous. These Actions satisfy the foregoing factors.

A. These Actions involve a large number of parties with a high degree of commonality of injury and common questions of law and fact.

A large number of parties are anticipated as the Defendants' products account for more than 50% of the approximate 300,000 annual sales of implanted port products in the United States, and there is a complication rate of over 60% associated with such products. Centralization is appropriate here because the Actions all have substantial commonality of questions of fact and law. Here, the Actions allege that Defendants engaged in wrongful conduct in the design, manufacture, marketing, sale, and post-market surveillance of their implanted port products.

The Actions further allege that the design of the catheter components of Defendants' products are rendered unreasonably dangerous by a common design element, namely exposed barium sulfate on the catheter surface, and that said unreasonably dangerous condition caused Plaintiffs' injuries. Moreover, these Actions allege that the Defendants knew of these defects and failed to correct them by incorporating a safer feasible alternative design and failed to adequately warn healthcare providers of the nature and magnitude of the risks attendant to these defects. The common questions of fact concerning the development, testing, manufacturer, sale, marketing, and adequacy of warnings for Defendants' implanted port products—including industry knowledge of the products' danger—clearly warrant transfer and consolidation of these Actions.

Further, these Actions share common Defendants and corporate witnesses. There is geographical dispersion of the parties as the Defendants' implanted port products were sold throughout the United States. There is a high degree of commonality of injury with most parties suffering one or more of the three injuries described above: catheter fracture, catheter infection, and thromboembolism. These same or similar factors led the United States Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation to decide that all pending and future federal Bard implanted port cases should be centralized for case management purposes. See Transfer Order, MDL No. 3081, attached hereto as Exhibit B. Although the MDL Order is not dispositive on this Court, its reasoning is sensible and persuasive. The MDL panel found (correctly) that these cases all involve common questions of law and fact. Id. at p 1. As the MDL Panel noted:

All actions can be expected to share factual questions arising from allegations that defendants manufacture the catheter component of their port devices with a concentration of barium sulfate that is too high, which reduces the material integrity of the catheter, and can lead to injuries, including infection, fracture of the catheter, migration of the catheter, and thrombosis. All actions share common issues of fact regarding whether the design of Bard's port catheters involves a concentration of barium sulfate that reduces the material integrity of the catheters and can cause injury, whether defendants adequately tested the devices, and whether defendants adequately monitored and reported adverse events relating to product failures. Centralization offers an opportunity to substantially streamline pretrial proceedings, reduce duplicative discovery and conflicting pretrial obligations, as well as prevent inconsistent rulings on common Daubert challenges.

While Bard initially resisted Plaintiff's attempt to consolidate the federal cases into an MDL, the panel rejected that argument and instead accepted Bard's alternative argument to centralize the litigation in the United States District Court for the District of Arizona. In doing so, the Panel relied on well-established principles of centralization:

But as we have held, “almost all injury litigation involves questions of causation that are case- and plaintiff-specific. Such differences have not been an impediment to centralization in the past.” In re Wright Med. Tech., Inc., Conserve Hip Implant Prods. Liab. Litig., 844 F. Supp. 2d 1371, 1372 (J.P.M.L. 2012). Unlike in In re Belviq (Lorcaserin HCI) Products Liability Litigation, cited by defendants, the plaintiffs in the cases now before the Panel allege a common mechanism for their various injuries. See 555 F. Supp. 3d 1369 (J.P.M.L. 2021). “[I]ndividualized factual issues concerning causation,” therefore, seem far less likely to “predominate and diminish the potential to achieve significant efficiencies in an MDL.” Id. at 1370.

B. Centralization will promote judicial efficiency and serve the convenience of the parties and the witnesses by avoiding duplicative discovery and inconsistent rulings.

Coordination of these Actions will avoid unnecessarily duplicative discovery across multiple Actions and eliminate potentially conflicting or inconsistent rulings. As described herein, these Actions will turn upon common questions of fact. The common questions to every Action will be answered through fact and expert discovery that will likely be extensive, expensive, and time-consuming. The likely number of cases involving these products makes centralization critical as more than 300,000 implanted port products are used on patients in the United States each year. Plaintiffs with Actions in this litigation will seek substantially the same discovery from defendants; review the same documents produced in discovery; take depositions of the same corporate officers and other witness, as well the same or substantially similar expert witnesses; and will involve the same questions of law surrounding expert qualifications. Centralization and coordination of these Actions will avoid piecemeal litigation and discovery and serve to lessen these burdens on the parties, the witnesses, and the courts by preventing inconsistent pretrial rulings, eliminating duplicative discovery and motion practice, and promoting convenience, efficiency, and the conservation of judicial resources.

THESE ACTIONS SHOULD BE CENTRALIZED IN BERGEN COUNTY

Pursuant to Directive #02-19, issues of fairness, geographical location of the parties and attorneys, and the existing civil and mass tort caseload in the vicinage are considered when determining the vicinage to assign a particular mass tort for centralized management.

Each of the implanted port product cases identified in Exhibit A are already pending in Bergen County. Moreover, Defendants Bard Access Systems, Inc. and Becton Dickinson and Company both maintain a principal place of business in Franklin Lakes, Bergen County, New Jersey. Therefore, Bergen County would be the most convenient location for Defendants and their corporate witnesses to attend court proceedings. Accordingly, Bergen County is the most logical and fair vicinage for these Actions to be centralized.

THE UNDERSIGNED AND JENNIFER ELWELL SHOULD BE APPOINTED AS CO-LEADS OF THE NEW JERSEY MCL

On September 18, 2023, the Hon. David G Campbell, Senior United States District Judge for the District of Arizona, held the first case management conference pursuant to the directives received from the JPMDL. Judge Campbell issued an order dated September 19, 2023, appointing the undersigned to the Plaintiff's Executive Committee and as New Jersey Liaison to the District of Arizona. A copy of the September 19, 2023 Order is attached hereto as Exhibit C. During the conference, I answered Judge Campbell's questions about New Jersey MCL procedure and Judge Campbell stated that he expected there to be a high degree of coordination with the New Jersey Court. Judge Campbell further appointed Jennifer Elwell, Esquire as a member of the Plaintiffs Steering Committee. Id.

My resume is attached hereto as Exhibit D. As this Court will note, I have 35 years of experience in the areas of complex civil litigation and mass torts. I have served as liaison counsel in several New Jersey MCL's, and have served as lead, co-lead and Steering Committee member on numerous mass torts and class actions. Ms. Elwell is similarly experienced, as her resume attached hereto as Exhibit E demonstrates. Each of us has the experience, resources and time to devote to ensure that this MCL is organized, streamlined and efficient. Each of us also has the resources of much larger firms, and the support staff necessary to devote to this project. Each of us is ready and able to answer any questions which this court or in the transferee MCL court might have.

CONCLUSION

Pursuant to the foregoing, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Bard Implanted Port litigation be designated as Multi-County Litigation in the Bergen County Superior Court pursuant to R. 4:48A, and that the undersigned and Jennifer Elwell be appointed as co-lead counsel.

Respectfully submitted,

UNITED STATES JUDICIAL PANEL
on
MULTIDISTRICT LITIGATION

IN RE: BARD IMPLANTED PORT CATHETER
PRODUCTS LIABILITY LITIGATION

MDL No. 3081

TRANSFER ORDER

Before the Panel:* Plaintiffs in eight actions move under 28 U.S.C. § 1407 to centralize this litigation in the Western District of Missouri. This litigation consists of ten actions pending in six districts, as listed on Schedule A.¹ Additionally, the Panel has been notified of 38 potential tag-along actions in 25 districts.² Plaintiffs in the remaining two constituent actions and four potential tag-along actions support centralization in the Western District of Missouri. Defendants Becton, Dickinson & Co., C.R. Bard, Inc., and Bard Access Systems, Inc., oppose the motion or, alternatively, suggest centralization in the District of Utah or, alternatively, the District of Arizona.

On the basis of the papers filed and the hearing session held, we find that these actions involve common questions of fact, and that centralization in the District of Arizona will serve the convenience of the parties and witnesses and promote the just and efficient conduct of this litigation. All actions can be expected to share factual questions arising from allegations that defendants manufacture the catheter component of their port devices with a concentration of barium sulfate that is too high, which reduces the material integrity of the catheter, and can lead to injuries, including infection, fracture of the catheter, migration of the catheter, and thrombosis. All actions share common issues of fact regarding whether the design of Bard's port catheters involves a concentration of barium sulfate that reduces the material integrity of the catheters and can cause injury, whether defendants adequately tested the devices, and whether defendants adequately monitored and reported adverse events relating to product failures. Centralization offers an opportunity to substantially streamline pretrial proceedings, reduce duplicative discovery and conflicting pretrial obligations, as well as prevent inconsistent rulings on common Daubert challenges.

* Judge David C. Norton took no part in the decision of this matter.

¹ The Eastern District of Missouri Cunningham action originally was filed in the Western District of Missouri, but was transferred to the Eastern District under 28 U.S.C. § 1406(a), as reflected in Schedule A.

² These and any other related actions are potential tag-along actions. See Panel Rules 1.1(h), 7.1, and 7.2.

Defendants argue that individual factual issues will predominate with respect to the wide variety of alleged injuries, products, and the timing of each plaintiff's injury. But as we have held, "almost all injury litigation involves questions of causation that are case- and plaintiff-specific. Such differences have not been an impediment to centralization in the past." In re Wright Med. Tech., Inc., Conserve Hip Implant Prods. Liab. Litig., 844 F. Supp. 2d 1371, 1372 (J.P.M.L. 2012). Unlike in In re Belviq (Lorcaserin HCl) Products Liability Litigation, cited by defendants, the plaintiffs in the cases now before the Panel allege a common mechanism for their various injuries. See 555 F. Supp. 3d 1369 (J.P.M.L. 2021). "[I]ndividualized factual issues concerning causation," therefore, seem far less likely to "predominate and diminish the potential to achieve significant efficiencies in an MDL." Id. at 1370.

Defendants also argue that centralization is unnecessary because they successfully informally coordinated previous similar actions with plaintiffs' counsel, and that those actions resolved early without significant proceedings. While we appreciate defendants' willingness to cooperate, we are persuaded that the current number of involved cases, counsel, and districts would make informal coordination unworkable. There are now nearly 50 actions pending in 28 districts.

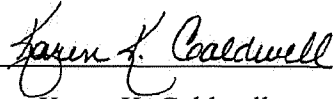

Defendants have represented that many of the cases filed are meritless, that certain plaintiffs' counsel have made false representations as part of an advertising campaign to solicit additional claims, and that creation of an MDL would reward such misconduct and lead to the filing of numerous additional non-meritorious cases. The Panel has rejected similar arguments on multiple occasions and does so again here. See, e.g., In re Xarelto (Rivaroxaban) Prods. Liab. Litig., 65 F. Supp. 3d 1402, 1405 (J.P.M.L. 2014) ("Nor are we persuaded by defendants' related argument that an MDL will generate the filing of voluminous claims without due diligence by plaintiffs' counsel. The Panel often has observed that '[t]he response to such concerns more properly inheres in assigning all related actions to one judge committed to disposing of spurious claims quickly.'") (quoting In re Seroquel Prods. Liab. Litig., 447 F. Supp. 2d 1376, 1378 (J.P.M.L. 2006)); see also In re Cook Med., Inc., IVC Filters Mktg., Sales Practices & Prods. Liab. Litig., 53 F. Supp. 3d 1379, 1381 (J.P.M.L. 2014) ("[T]he transferee court handling several cases in an MDL likely is in a better position—and certainly is in no worse position than courts in multiple districts handling individual cases—to properly address meritless claims. There are many tools a transferee court may use to accomplish this task. And importantly, if defendants believe plaintiffs' counsel are filing frivolous claims, it is incumbent upon defense counsel to bring that concern to the attention of the transferee court, and to propose a process to identify and resolve such claims.").

We select the District of Arizona—where a constituent action is pending—as the transferee district for this nationwide litigation. Defendants represent that Bard Access Systems has a significant business presence in this district, and that relevant witnesses will be located there. The Honorable David G. Campbell presides over MDL No. 2641 – In re Bard IVC Filters Products Liability Litigation, involving a different medical device manufactured by Bard. He has ably handled that litigation, and we are confident that he will steer this litigation on a prudent course.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the actions listed on Schedule A and pending outside the District of Arizona are transferred to the District of Arizona and, with the consent of that court, assigned to the Honorable David G. Campbell for coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings.
