History of West Wycombe Village

The village of West Wycombe was once an important coaching stop between London and Oxford. In 1767 there were 17 public houses listed in the village. The village, with its well-preserved facings of original 16th – 18th century buildings, is partly owned and maintained by the National Trust. It has a range of traditional shops with several places where you can quench your thirst and enjoy a snack or a meal.

On the summit of West Wycombe Hill is the famous landmark, St Lawrence Church. It was built in the 14th century and then dramatically changed in 1763. Sir Francis Dashwood followed the example of many patrons of his time and restored his medieval church. After a grand tour of Europe and Ottoman empire, Sir Francis had some grand ideas. His most famous idea was the Golden Ball, a copy from the customs house in Venice. The great gilded ball was designed to hold drinking and gambling parties. Next to the Church is the Dashwood Mausoleum. Built in 1763 it is said to have been the largest flint monument in Britain.

Three hundred feet below St Lawrence is, the Hellfire Caves. A series of man-made tunnels and caverns dating back to the 1750s. Explore a quarter of a mile of tunnels, through the great Banqueting Hall to the River Styx.

West Wycombe Park & House has been home of the Dashwood family for over 300 years. Set in 45 acres of landscaped parkland with temples and follies, the house as we see it today is the 18th-century creation of Sir Francis Dashwood.
